Record Peacetime Army Bill Is Voted By Senate, 74 to 0

Roosevelt Rejects Landon's Challenge for Declaration on 3d Term; Decks Cleared for Navy Measure.

By The United Press.
WASHINGTON, May 22.—The senate passed the record peacetime $1,823,000,000 army supply bill late today and promptly cleared the decks for action on the $1,458,756,728 navy measure. The roll call vote was 74 to 0.

These bills plus other actual or contemplated defense expenditures sent President Roosevelt's 1941 national defense program soaring toward the $4,000,000,000 mark.

All along the line the government stepped up the tempo of preparedness on land, sea and in the air.

280,000-Man Army.
Developments which broke with amazing rapidity on the preparedness "front" during the day were highlighted by the senate action on the army measure, which will provide for a full peacetime army of 280,000 men, thousands of planes, huge supplies of munitions and a $132,000,000 "blank check" item for President Roosevelt to spend as he sees fit in strengthening the army.

Meantime, President Roosevelt tonight rejected a challenge by former Governor Alf M. Landon, of Kansas, that he publicly eliminate himself as a third-term candidate as the price of coalition dissection of vital policies dealing with war problems.

Issues Statement.
Landon, the 1936 Republican standard bearer, issued a statement after a two-hour luncheon conference with the President, declaring that Republican leaders can and will join the administration only if Mr. Roosevelt withdraws from the presidential race. The "blank check" provision, major point of debate, was adopted without a record vote after the Democratic majority shouted down a proposal by Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg, Republican, Michigan, to create a joint congressional committee to "police" operations of such funds.

Senator Elmer Thomas, Democrat, Oklahoma, in charge of the bill, argued this was no time to set up committees. He said "there is no doubt in my mind that Germany's immediate aim is to conquer and dominate the world."

Senate approval of the measure, which now goes to conference with the house for approval of senate amendments, came after two days of debate and six days after Mr. Roosevelt delivered his special defense message.

Acting with utmost speed, the senate appropriations committee

4 Alternatives In Prospect If Germany Wins

Picture of Hitler Demanding Navy Intact Spurs U. S. Defense.

By GLADSTONE WILLIAMS.
Staff Correspondent.

WASHINGTON, May 22.—Behind the feverish activity going on today in Washington to revamp our past conception of national defense is one dominant thought which permeated the entire governmental structure and is acting as the driving force in current moves to set in motion the new billion-dollar defense program so dramatically launched by President Roosevelt in his sudden appearance before a joint session of congress last week.

That question, currently written in flaming letters, is: What becomes of the British fleet if the German onslaught results in a total capitulation of Allied forces?

On the answer, some of our far-sighted government leaders believe, may rest the beginning of the most momentous period in American history. The possibilities of it all—not probabilities for the moment—have a bearing on our future national policy that is utterly stupendous. No other words suffice in appraising the gravity of developments under the present outlook.

Air Supercharged.

The official atmosphere of Washington is supercharged with the vast implications involved. It epitomizes the nervous tension of the government and reflects the solemn undertone that is responsible for the solidified backing the President is receiving in congress for an unprecedented peace-time defense appropriation.

Four answers to the question are immediately obvious as alternatives. First, regardless of any forced capitulation of the British Isles, the fleet might refuse to surrender and take refuge in Canadian waters adjacent to a new seat of the British government, suggested for Ottawa if the worst comes.

Second, it might follow the example of the German fleet at Scapa Flow after the last World War and scuttle itself.

Third, it might be surrendered intact as a price demanded by Hitler against the complete bombing destruction of British industrial

Rivers Defies 'Liberty' Union On Alien Stand

Group Threatening Fingerprint Injunction Is Called 'Red Front.'

Governor Rivers threw down the gauntlet to the American Civil Liberties Union in New York yesterday over the proposed registration and fingerprinting of aliens in Georgia, and in a crisp, burning reply to Roger N. Baldwin, Union director, who threatened to seek an injunction, the Governor charged that the union had been "the prestige front for Communist agitators since the days of Lenin."

Other developments in the alien registration drive yesterday were:

1. City Attorney Jack C. Savage advised Mayor Hartsfield to approve an ordinance passed Monday by city council, requiring aliens to register and be fingerprinted within 30 days. The mayor had sought legal advice as to the authority of the municipality to enact such a law.

2. Attorney General Ellis Arnall praised President Roosevelt's move in ordering the Labor Department's immigration and naturalization service transferred to the Justice Department, in order to deal quickly with fifth column treachery. Arnall stressed the fact more agents were needed in this fight, and every state and community should support the President, he said. He added he would have more to say on the subject

Forgotten Dads To Get Break In Father's Day Letter Contest

The forgotten man of the American family will get recognition this year when June 16 rolls around, because Georgia sons and daughters are going to win for their proud fathers merchandise prizes valued at hundreds of dollars.

These gifts for dad will be awarded because boys and girls between the ages of six and 60 are taking a little time to write a letter, of 200 words or less, on "Why I think my father is the best father a son or daughter could have."

It all started when The Constitution and Atlanta merchants became a little anxious because Father's Day has been just another Sunday that came up in June, rather than a tribute to the grandest guy in the world.

So the merchants and The Constitution got together and decided to find out just why your father is the best. If you are one of 12 sons and daughters who write a winning letter, you will receive a cash prize and the letter will be published.

And Dad—your Dad—will get any one of scores of merchandise awards. For example, if you are one of the four persons who will win first honors, your father will be invited by Rich's, Davison-Paxon's or Muse to take home a quality summer suit, a fine hat and a slick pair of shoes.

And, frankly, we think it's about

U. S. Will Send 'Lindbergh Speaking for Hitler Ship to Ireland Or Goering?' Byrnes Demands For Americans

Warring Nations Advised Against Molesting the President Roosevelt.

WASHINGTON, May 22.—(AP)—The government decided tonight to send the liner President Roosevelt to Ireland to bring home Americans, and gave notice to Britain, France, Germany, Belgium, Holland and Norway lest they molest it.

The ship will sail tomorrow night from New York for Galway, Ireland.

Secretary Hull telegraphed American envoys at London, Paris, Berlin, Brussels, The Hague and Oslo to inform the governments to which they are accredited that "the government of the United States expects this vessel to make its eastward and its westward voyages without interruption or molestation by the air, naval or military forces of any belligerent."

The envoys were instructed to say that the vessel will carry no cargoes either eastward or westward, and on the westward voyage will carry only American citizens and their families.

WASHINGTON, May 22.—(AP)—President Roosevelt sent to the senate today the nomination of Sumner T. Pike, of Maine, to be a member of the Securities Commission.

'No More Qualified' To Advise on Foreign Policy Than 'Wrong Way Corrigan,' Senator Replies to Colonel's Criticism of F. D. R.

WASHINGTON, May 22.—(AP)—Striking back at Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh for his criticism of Roosevelt administration foreign policy, Senator Byrnes, Democrat, South Carolina, asserted tonight that Lindbergh was "no more qualified" to speak on the subject than "Wrong Way Corrigan or any other aviator who may fly the Atlantic ocean."

He added that "fifth columns are already active in America" and that "those who consciously or unconsciously retard the efforts of this government to provide for the defense of the American people are the fifth column's most effective fellow travelers."

The senator said that "Mr. Lindbergh" (nowhere in the manuscript of the speech did the title "colonel" appear) had accepted a decoration from Hitler. He went on to inquire:

"When Mr. Lindbergh says, 'No one wishes to attack us,' is he authorized to speak for Hitler or Goering? Can the American people, in the light of recent history, accept the assurance of this young gentleman that if we do not ask for war it will not come to us?"

Byrnes' address, prepared for delivery over the radio, was considered the administration forces' official reply to the speech in which Lindbergh called last Sunday for an end to "hysterical chatter of calamity and invasion," declared what he considered meddling in Europe and urged a "definite policy" of defense.

Byrnes said President Roosevelt

Arras and Abbeville Retaken; Germans Hampered by Rain

Allies' Successes Ease Pressure on Pocketed Troops; Property, Labor Put in British Premier's Hands.

By The Associated Press.

The Allies, with swift counter thrusts by land and air, last night checked—for the present at least—Adolf Hitler's two-pointed advance toward the English Channel and Paris after five black days of Allied reverses.

This Allied achievement, which likewise hampered the German effort to tighten its lines around 1,000,000 Allied troops in northern France and Belgium, came during a day of swift military and diplomatic events which produced these developments:

1. Britain made Prime Minister Winston Churchill virtual dictator through a swiftly enacted law conscripting British labor and property. Prime Minister Churchill was given unprecedented powers by the action of parliament.

2. The British disclosed that they were flying some of their American-built bombers across the Atlantic from Canada in their desperate bid to overcome Nazi superiority in the air.

Hint Attack Slowed.
3. Pointing for the narrow straits of Dover and a short cut to England, the German armies of Flanders poured more men and guns into France, while giving the first official hint that their 13-day sweep through Belgium, the Netherlands and Luxembourg and into northern France may have been slowed down.

4. Battle, the last of the great forays of Belgium's Liege defenses, fell to the Germans after a 20-minute air and artillery assault.

5. The Allies recaptured Arras and Abbeville, the latter the nearest point reached by the Germans in their channel drive, and took their main stand to halt the Nazis on a new 200-mile Allied line along the Somme and Aisne rivers. It was rumored Amiens also had been recaptured, but the report was without confirmation.

6. Rumania called up 300,000 reserves and rushed most of them to the Russian frontier and placed the oil-rich Balkan kingdom on a virtual war-time mobilization.

7. Heavy rains bogged the fields of northern France, hampering Hitler's heavily mechanized blitzkrieg tactics.

Both France and Germany have rushed troops from the north Swiss border to the battlegrounds

General O'Ryan Says U. S. Must Send 'All Aid'

Help Allies, 'With or Without War Declaration,' He Urges.

NEW YORK, May 22.—(AP)—Major General John F. O'Ryan, commander of the 27th U. S. Division during the World War, urged today that congress authorize immediate military aid to the Allies "with or without war declaration."

O'Ryan suggested sending aircraft carriers, transports, protecting naval vessels and at least 2,000 bomber and fighter planes with pilots.

He expressed his views in a telegram after receiving a message from 600 members whom he led in 1918 offering to fight under him again.

NEW YORK, May 22.—(UP)—A resolution urging immediate adoption of universal compulsory military training was adopted tonight by the Military Training Camps Association.

The group organized the Plattsburg movement for training officers for the World War.

Bryan Denies Participation in Any Whippings

Defense Rests After Statement; Case Will Reach Jury Today.

Raymond "Slim" Bryan, East Point city mechanic, on trial on charges of participating in five Ku Klux Klan floggings, took the stand in his own defense yesterday afternoon, and denied he ever "whipped anybody or went out with anybody else to whip anybody."

Bryan's denial was made during a second trip to the stand. At first he spoke for about three minutes, during which he told the jury he was a hard worker and pleaded for them to "let me go back to my wife and children."

Resumes Stand.
After returning to his seat at the counsel table, Defense Attorney Harold Sheats leaned over and spoke to him. Then Bryan took the stand again and made his denial.

With Bryan's brief statement, the defense rested. The case will go to the jury this morning, after arguments by opposing counsel and the court's charge.

The defense will get the opening and closing argument, because it offered no evidence other than the defendant's unsworn statement.

Although named in a 13-count indictment, only five counts will go to the jury. Six were eliminated by the solicitor general at the start of the trial because Floyd I. Lee, a material witness, has declined to testify. Two other counts were eliminated yesterday because of certain statute limitations. Both of the latter alleged incidents occurred more than two years ago.

Earlier in the day, the state presented several witnesses who linked Bryan with several floggings. Both W. C. Bishop and W. C. Trimble, admitted members of the Ku Klux Klan and participants in floggings, testified that Bryan participated in and used the lash in certain whipping incidents.

Trimble's Testimony.
Trimble said the defendant applied the lash to P. S. Toney, CIO organizer, and Louis H. Brown, Bishop linked Bryan with the flogging of Bert Harris, Toney, Brown and E. K. Rammage, Atlanta printer.

J. D. Cook, a cripple who lives near East Point, testified that Bryan was the member of a gang that came to his house and fought with him and his wife in an attempt to abduct Cook.

James P. Billingsly, formerly of East Point, told the jury that once Bryan accosted him and told him that if he didn't straighten up the East Point Klan would get him. The case is being tried before Judge Walter C. Hendrix, with Solicitor General John A. Boykin as prosecutor and Attorneys Harold Sheats and John Hudson as defense counsel.

CAROLINA JURY DROPS NIGHT-RIDING CHARGES
ANDERSON, S. C., May 22.—(AP)—The Anderson county grand jury failed today to indict any of seven men on charges arising from night-riding activities here last November and December, which the jury has been investigating since Monday.

The seven were arrested by members of the South Carolina constabulary after the flogging of Lanier Pruitt by a hooded band on December 27, 1939.

They were Fred V. Johnson, of Greenville, and F. V. Flowers, Roy Flowers, Howard Drake, J. D. Smith, Harold Garrison and W. W. Hammon, of Anderson.

All but Hammon were charged with conspiracy and menacing and intimidating certain citizens while wearing masks. Hammon was charged with assault while wearing a mask.

Fate of British Fleet Is Major U.S. Problem

centers with its consequent appalling loss of life. Fourth, it might be turned over to the United States with no further ceremony than that involved in our government signing a receipt for payment of the British debt.

Latter Two Vital.
It is with the latter two alternatives that some of our military experts and high government heads are most vitally concerned.

What are the implications of these possible developments—contingencies which cannot be ignored in the light of the amazing swiftness with which the German military machine has overrun part of France and the toll of destruction left in the path of its dive bombers?

Assuming for the sake of exploring all alternatives that Germany should get the British fleet intact and with it as a necessary corollary, all or the bulk of British commercial ship tonnage. The Allies—British, French, Dutch, Norwegians, Belgians and their colonial possessions—have deposited to their credit in this country vast sums in gold and investments amounting to billions of dollars. What if Germany demands that these credits in gold and investments be turned over to her as a war indemnity from the Allies? What of Bermuda, the West Indies? Greenland, Iceland, the Azores? What of Canada? What of her "fifth column" activities in Mexico and South America?

Inadequate Facilities.
With the British fleet in her hands, augmented by her own naval force and the shadow of Italian sea power in the background, not to include the Japanese enigma, would not Germany be able to voice such demands? How effectively could we resist them with our present inadequate facilities?

And if we resisted, as most certainly we would, would Hitler permit a period of negotiation to ensue during which we, the most powerful nation in the world from the standpoint of resources, gold and potential manpower, might be allowed to reorganize our own armed forces to a point of superiority? Many of our thinking statesmen think not. That is what happened to England and France during the past six years.

The final alternative has equally momentous implications on what, in lieu of a less fitting term, may be our future destiny as a nation grown to practically everything in world prominence except military power.

Could We Refuse?
Suppose the British should tender us her fleet as a token payment of the debt? Could we well refuse to accept it?

Suppose we accepted it. What of the obligations and responsibilities that go with it? Immediately, according to our military and naval experts, we would have to occupy Bermuda, the Azores, the Cape Verde islands, Greenland, the Falkland islands and perhaps other outlying naval posts of the British empire.

Other probabilities involved in the same thesis—probabilities that Canada might ask to come under the protective wing of the United States and that circumstances might force an extension of our boundaries southward to the Panama Canal. Overnight we might conceivably find ourselves in the shoes of a world naval power exceeding the heights attained by any nation in the past. That alone would not give us a guarantee against possible future invasion from the air.

Safe at Present.
Without ships and a naval force to back up her superior air power, we have nothing to fear in the way of an immediate invasion from any enemy country. But we only have to go back 23 years to be reminded that we ourselves placed two million armed men in Europe under the protective convoy of the Allied fleet.

As for the first and second alternatives—scuttling or independent operation of the British naval force—these are mere modifications of the two more serious contingencies. Refusal of the fleet to surrender after taking position in British colonial waters would only postpone the ultimate issue between scuttling and delivery to either the United States or Germany.

Problem Not Simple.
Even if it were scuttled, our problem might not be a simple one should we be faced with a working arrangement between the existing naval units of Germany, Italy and Japan.

There are some of the weighty considerations that are giving grave concern to the government in Washington. No one could foresee such a speedy turn in events. The vision of a German victory casts an uncertain shadow across our future scheme of things, but there are reasons to believe that the White House is alert to every possible alternative in the making. It explains many of the things that have been moving at a war tempo here for the past week.

6,000 Persons Attend Police Barbecue Here

City Officers Serve 15,000 Pounds of Pork and Lamb.

More than 6,000 persons swarmed over Lakewood park yesterday afternoon and last night, as Atlanta city policemen put on their annual barbecue and picnic for the benefit of the Police Relief Association.

Consumed during the affair, according to Captain G. Neal Ellis, president of the association, were 15,000 pounds of pork and lamb, 4,000 loaves of bread and 500 pounds of potato chips.

The men in blue attended their own affair in three shifts, so that all officers managed to take part without leaving the city unprotected. The relief association is a retirement fund, with insurance for widows of policemen.

TRIBUTE TO ELKS.
ATHENS, Ga., May 22.—Elks from Athens and five other Georgia cities will gather here Thursday night to pay honor to Colonel M. G. Michael, of Athens, first exalted ruler of the Athens Lodge No. 790. The event has been designated as "Michael night." The Athens lodge was chartered in 1902, with Colonel Michael as exalted ruler. Elks from Elberton, Augusta, Gainesville, Decatur and Atlanta will attend.

$500,000,000 U. S. Holdings Are in England

Scores of American Firms Affected by War-Time Rule.

NEW YORK, May 22.—(AP)—The biggest American business investments abroad yet to come within scope of state economic controls would be affected by England's war-time rule of industry, Wall Street sources said today.

It was estimated, on the basis of latest government figures, that American interests have invested nearly $500,000,000 in factories and distribution facilities in the United Kingdom out of a total of $1,350,000,000 in direct investments in Europe.

Scores of big American companies have branch factories, subidiaries, affiliates or sales connections in England, including such concerns as General Motors, Ford, General Electric, Goodyear Tire, Continental Can, Socony Vacuum Oil and International Business Machines.

Germany, second biggest European outlet for American industrial capital in the past, long ago imposed strict totalitarian controls over foreign-owned units operating there, including the "blocking" of earnings against withdrawal by the owners.

A banking source estimated American business has been drawing about $20,000,000 income annually on its United Kingdom direct investments. The British authorities, it was said, so far have been permitting the transmission of the bulk of these earnings under exchange licenses but only at the open-market rate for the pound sterling, which has fallen steeply since the war began.

Banking circles suggested England eventually may curb transfers of earnings out of the country in event the Allies became pressed for dollar exchange to pay for war purchases in this country.

Stands of Cotton Are Called 'Poor'

Stands of cotton in Georgia were described as "poor" yesterday by the Weather Bureau in reporting a deficiency of rainfall for the fourth consecutive week.

Lack of rain coupled with cold nights also hampered the wheat, oats, Irish and sweet potato, tobacco and truck crops, the bureau said in a synopsis of weather and crop conditions for the past seven days.

Truck crops were "much in need of rain" and "rain would be beneficial" to the peach crop, the bureau said, adding that pastures were "deteriorating in most places." The condition of the peach crop was termed "good."

Temperatures were reported generally favorable for tobacco, but the soil was said to be too dry. Growth of corn was reported "fair to poor" in northern and central counties and "fair to good" in the southern part of the state.

6 Million Expansion in Argentina's Industries

NEW YORK, May 22.—(AP)—Industrial expansion involving more than $6,000,000 was authorized by the Argentine government between February 1 and March 20, the Argentine information bureau said today.

Establishment of new joint stock companies with a total capital of around 18,900,000 pesos (roughly $6,300,000 at the official exchange rate) was approved by the government. "A large proportion of these companies represent manufacturing industries, which have been established as an indirect result of the European war," said the bureau.

Red Cross Appeals for Haste in Completing Atlanta Quota.

Contributions poured into the local offices of the American Red Cross yesterday swelling the total to $10,236.23 for war relief.

The relief situation in Europe is becoming worse instead of better, according to a telegram received yesterday from Norman H. Davis, national Red Cross chief.

The Rev. W. D. Harry, chairman of the Meriwether county chapter, reported yesterday the chapter there had passed its quota of $300 and would have $500 before the end of the week.

Other Georgia chapters are reporting progress on their quotas and reports throughout the state indicate Georgia will reach its quota.

A meeting of the citizens' committee yesterday at noon brought renewed enthusiasm to both leaders and workers as reports turned in brought the total to its present figure.

Phil McDuffie, Atlanta chairman, said at the meeting: "Procrastination on the part of anyone may cost the lives of those who through no fault of their own, have been made homeless and who now must look to the

Swastika 'Teaser' Ad Jams Phones, Spoils Editors' Sleep

A swastika, which as a symbol is a good deal older than Germany, appeared in a "teaser" theater ad in yesterday's Constitution.

The ad carried the cryptic announcement: "Government Employees: Be Careful."

Result was The Constitution's 11 trunk line switchboard jammed; editors were jerked out of bed at daybreak by anxious milkmen; any number of people suffered from poorly digested breakfasts, government employees looked for fifth columnists in every file room, and weary reporters automatically repeated into city room phones:

"No, ma'am, it's no secret German signal. Just a 'teaser' ad."

A teaser, it may be explained, is an advertisement designed to arouse public curiosity today and satisfy it tomorrow. This one more than filled the bill.

This morning's paper carries a follow-up inserted by yesterday's swastika man. It is the announcement of the showing at an Atlanta theater of a film purportedly exposing German spy methods.

The moral, if any, is to advertise in The Constitution if you really want to acquaint the public with your product.

Red Cross for relief. We have obtained, in comparatively small amounts, one-tenth of our quota.

Contributions yesterday of $50 or more which went to make up the $10,000 total were made by the following:

Mrs. Joseph Cooper Jr., M. W. Newbanks, Mrs. Joseph R. Lamar, Mrs. Hugh Richardson, Mrs. J. N. McEachern, Colonel and Mrs. C. C. Early, Edward R. Kane, Mrs. F. M. Robinson, Mr. and Mrs. R. B. Wilby, Mrs. Lee M. Jordan, L. M. Weinstein, A. J. Weinberg, J. R. Jacobs, Mrs. R. W. Johnston, Clarence E. Elsas, Robert Tyne Jones Jr., L. A. Davis, Mrs. E. H. Imman, Marion Smith, L. F. Montgomery, A. Montgomery, Samuel C. Dobbs, W. D. Alexander, Mrs. John S. Hurt and P. C. McDuffie.

Mercury Ascends East of the Mississippi River

By The Associated Press.

Most states east of the Mississippi river noted a rising mercury yesterday, while frost and temperatures of 40 degrees or lower were reported in Wyoming.

Rain fell in Oklahoma, Texas and New Mexico, and also dampened several north-central states.

Generally fair weather prevailed in the southeast, and similar conditions were reported northward throughout the Ohio valley. A drop in temperatures was registered in North Dakota and Minnesota.

Wartime Romances Related in Contest

Stories describing romances resulting from the first World War are being described in 200-word letters to The Constitution "Waterloo Bridge" contest editor. These letters are being written by couples who met and married during the hectic war days under unusual circumstances.

Writers of the best letters will be invited to an elaborate dinner and theater party at 7 o'clock Saturday night instead of Friday night on the terrace of the Henry Grady hotel. Following the party, given by The Constitution and the Loew's Grand theater, guests will be taken to see the moving war-love story at Loew's Grand, "Waterloo Bridge." Robert Taylor and Vivien Leigh star in the drama, in which they meet in an air-raid shelter.

Woman Stricken Fatally Upon Leaving Hospital

KEARNEY, Neb., May 22.—(AP) Ready to depart after a stay at the hospital, Mrs. Albert Huffman took the elevator from her third floor room to the first floor. She was stricken with pulmonary embolism and died almost immediately.

Waiting for her as the elevator descended was her husband, who had come to take her home.

Alabama Planter Hangs Self; Poor Crop Blamed

LANETT, Ala., May 22.—(AP)—Walter Z. Fletcher, 64-year-old plantation owner, hanged himself in his barn near Cusseta last night, Chambers County Coroner Clyde Blakely reported today.

Coroner Blakely said the family reported Fletcher had been despondent lately because of the poor outlook for crops and financial difficulties.

'Little Boy in Window' Is Dead From Malady

WATERBURY, Conn., May 22.—(AP)—The "little boy in the big window," nine-year-old Kenneth L. Andrus, is dead after a three-year fight against rheumatic fever.

The doctors prescribed care and plenty of sunshine for Kenneth, whose parents, unable to afford the expense of a sanitarium, put his bed beside an unusually large window in the front room of their home. The curtains always were drawn back. Thus he became known as the "little boy in the big window" to a hundred or more motorists and pedestrians who passed the house daily.

Loans on Surplus Rye Not To Exceed 38 Cents

WASHINGTON, May 22.—(AP)—The Agriculture Department said today it would make loans to growers on surplus 1940-grown rye at a maximum of 38 cents a bushel.

Designed to stabilize prices, loans would be made on farm-stored rye grading No. 2 or better, or grading No. 2 solely on the basis of test weight.

HELP KIDNEYS PASS 3 PINTS A DAY

Doctors say your kidneys contain 15 miles of tiny tubes or filters which help to purify the blood and keep you healthy. Kidneys remove excess acids and poisonous waste from your blood. They help most people pass about 3 pints a day.

When disorder of kidney function permits poisonous matter to remain in your blood, it may cause nagging backache, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up at night, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headache and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

4 Are Placed Under Bond in Strike Affray

Police Handling of Situation Is Criticized by Judge Rosser.

Four persons—two men and two women—charged with participating in strike disturbances Monday at the American Hat Company plant were placed under peace bonds yesterday by Judge Luther Rosser, who during a four-hour hearing criticized police handling of the situation and warned that Atlanta and the police department are on trial.

Nine of the peace bond cases were discharged by the court while one—that of Mrs. E. Alexander, who is alleged to have participated in stripping the clothes from a woman worker—was postponed until 10 o'clock Monday.

Bonds Assessed.
Those placed under bond and the amounts follow:

F. A. Savage, a factory employee, $500; R. S. Penn, a striker, $500; and Mrs. A. Hix and Mrs. Bessie Graden, both strikers, $100 each.

In holding Penn and Savage under bond, Judge Rosser warned Savage not to go back to the plant to work and Penn to stay off the picket line.

"If you do not do this," he said, "this bond is going up and I mean high."

According to testimony offered, Penn and Savage engaged in a fight at the plant Monday afternoon and Penn was cut on the arm and shoulder by Savage.

Attack Is Charged.
The two women, according to testimony, participated in an attack on Miss Alice Carroll, during which practically all her clothing was torn off. She exhibited the torn dress in court. She is an employee of the American Hat Company.

Mrs. Alexander, who is under a superior court restraining order preventing her from going near the hat company plant, denied on the stand that she participated in the fight with the Carroll girl.

Several times Judge Rosser cautioned her when she argued with William Grant, attorney for the company, during cross-examination.

One time Judge Rosser told her "You're going to get into some real trouble."

Hornby Is Witness.
Chief Hornby was a witness during the long proceedings. He denied he had told L. D. Thompson, president of the company, that it was not against the law for his employees to carry blackjacks, but later, on cross-examination, added "So far as I can recall."

Lieutenant E. G. Stephens of the city police department testified that he did not see any knives or razors during Monday afternoon's affray. Several witnesses for the strikers had previously testified that several employees came out of the building with knives or razors showing.

Judge Rosser asked Lieutenant Stephens, "Why don't you keep order down there?"

And when the police officer replied, "We're doing the best we can," Judge Rosser told him, "No you're not. You can keep that street open or you can keep your patrol wagon busy hauling them away. Your department is on trial in this matter, and it had better do something or it won't be long before I'll be trying a few policemen."

Earlier, Chief Hornby said that so far the department had "Not been able to get the recorder to try any of the cases."

ATTACKED—Miss Alice Carroll, employee of the American Hat Company, where a strike now is in progress, showed the court the dress which she testified was torn off her Monday during a fight near the plant. She blamed four alleged strikebreakers for the act.

Officers To Attend Army Staff School

Fourteen Georgia army officers, including several Atlantans, have been selected as students at the Command and General Staff School to begin at Fort Leavenworth, Kan., next February, Fourth Corps Area headquarters announced yesterday.

They are Lieutenant-Colonel Eugene N. Slappey, Macon; Major Bascom J. Bond, Atlanta; Major Roy S. Gibson, Atlanta; Major Arthur G. Hutchinson, Marietta; Captain Simon Foss, Savannah; Major Callie H. Palmer, Grayson; Major William R. Quatterman, Windsor; Captain Clem D. Gunn, Crawfordville; Lieutenant-Colonel Thomas W. Hasty, Chipley; Captain Paschal N. Strong, Jr., Savannah; Lieutenant-Colonel Lucius K. Patterson, Culbert; Major John J. Downing, Atlanta; Captain Cary J. King, Jr., Rome; and Captain Robert M. Shaw, of Marietta. Also detailed to the school were Majors Joseph S. Dougherty and Fred E. Gaillard, now on duty in Atlanta, and Major Nelson S. Williamson, now stationed in Decatur.

Atlantan Is Elected Odd Fellows' Head

AUGUSTA, Ga., May 22.—(P)—The 300 delegates attending the convention of the Georgia Odd Fellows Grand Lodge today elected Frank C. Bowen, of Atlanta, their new grand master and named Dorsey Harris, of Griffin, as deputy master.

J. H. Lloyd Jr., of Columbus, was made warden, and D. L. Nichols, secretary, and Fletcher W. Ladd, treasurer, both of Atlanta, were re-elected. George W. Howard, of Cedartown, retiring grand master, was elected grand representative to the sovereign grand lodge.

A resolution authorizing the organization of junior lodges for boys and Theta Rho clubs for girls in Georgia was adopted by the delegates.

Husband Called Cruel If He Hurlled Rolling Pin

SAN JOSE, Cal., May 22.—(P)—Judge R. R. Syer ruled it was not cruelty for a wife to kick her husband's shins under the bridge table if he trumped her ace. But, he held, the husband was cruel if he hurled a rolling pin at his wife.

On this basis, the judge denied Guy Bemis, 54, a divorce and awarded the decree to Mary L. Bemis, 45.

25 Cents Offer Gives Boost to Census Count

HUTCHINSON, Kan., May 22.—(P)—It looked as though the census count would fall below 30,000. The Chamber of Commerce offered 25 cents for each name of a resident missed by enumerators. The final tally: 31,413.

Income Tax Settlement Is Sought by Al Capone

CHICAGO, May 22.—(P)—Al Capone's lawyer informed the government today that the one-time leader hopes to settle shortly all the income tax claims against him.

The attorney, Abraham Tettelbaum, in asking Federal Judge John P. Barnes for a 60-day continuance in one tax matter, said Capone was about to make "a sincere effort" to settle all the civil income tax claims with the government. The matter up today was a government motion for a summary judgment against Capone of $201,347 for taxes, interest and penalties for the years 1924 to 1929. Judge Barnes continued the hearing until August 26.

Rotterdam Left Tumbled Heap Of Destruction

Hundreds Dead Under Blasted Blocks of Desolate Ruin.

ROTTERDAM, May 22.—(P)—Rotterdam, proud home of the Dutch merchant fleet, is only a scar of a city—its main business and financial district a pile of bricks and mortar serving as headstones for hundreds dead.

The historic harbor, the smoke of war rising above it, is a silent testimonial to the awful destruction which German stukas (dive bombers) work when the word is given.

Block after block of piled bricks, acres of desolation broken here and there by occasional blackened walls or twisted webs of girders, show how heavy a hand was laid on the land of tulips and wooden shoes.

Authoritative German sources say the district had been largely emptied of civilians before the terrifying stukas began diving, and it was determined officially that there were only 354 casualties. Some other unofficial estimates have ranged as high as 10,000.

German officials said the devastating raid lasted only seven and one-half minutes from the first bomb to the last.

The raid came after the German army had given the Dutch commander three hours to cease resistance.

The Nazi commander maintained the city lost its status as an "open town" when the Netherlands army resisted seizure. Rotterdam became a battlefield the first day of the German western offensive. Parachute troops were landed to hold the bridge over the Meuse river in the center of the city, and were assisted, many Netherlands say, by German "fifth column" members already in the city.

America Faces Worst Peril in 80 Years—Luce

Editor of Time, Life Says U. S. Survival Is Challenged.

NEW YORK, May 22.—(P)—Henry R. Luce, editor of Time and Life magazines, said tonight that a personal inspection of European conditions convinced him that "our America is inescapably confronted by a greater challenge to its survival as a land of liberty than any it has had to face in 80 years."

This challenge compels the United States to take two-fold action—drastically arm itself at once and make up its national mind as to "what we are willing to fight for," he said in a broadcast tonight.

Luce, who was visiting European capitals at the time of the Nazi invasion of Belgium and the Netherlands, returned on the trans-Atlantic Clipper plane Monday.

If the Allied powers lose, "we know that we and we only among the great powers are left to defend the democratic faith throughout the world," he said.

"We may never fight side by side, comrades in arms of France and Britain," he continued, "but we know that, fundamentally, their struggle is our struggle."

Luce said he saw a healthful condition in a certain feeling of alarm in the United States, but emphasized that "there is no occasion for the kind of alarm that starts a panic."

This country's armament problem—"a colossal job"—was one of preparing to meet "force with superior force," he said, while the national mind must be made up without fear and "not in timid optimism."

Population of Advance Does Just the Opposite

ADVANCE, Ind., May 22.—(P)—Advance did just the opposite the last 10 years.

Census figures today showed the town's population to be 358—a decline of five since 1930.

Wilhelmina Feared Blackmail Of Possessions, Envoy Reveals

WASHINGTON, May 22.—(UP)—Queen Wilhelmina fled Holland to escape German kidnapers and the possibility that if she were seized as a hostage the Reich may have subjected Netherlands overseas territories to "blackmail," Netherlands Minister Alexander Loudon said tonight.

Dr. Loudon suggested in an exclusive interview with the United Press that Her Majesty might have suffered the fate of the former Austrian Chancellor, Kurt Schuschnigg, or undergone attempts on her life such as King Haakon of Norway experienced had she remained with her subjects.

Schuschnigg reportedly was subjected to ill-treatment during negotiations at Berchtesgaden which caused him to faint from pain and yield to German demands for incorporation of Austria into the Reich.

The minister granted the interview after publication of reports from Berlin that the Hollanders were bitter over the queen's departure and were making statements such as "the House of Orange will never rule again."

"In several newspaper articles," he said, "allegations of bitterness against Her Majesty, Queen Wilhelmina, have been made because Her Majesty was compelled to leave her country and take refuge in England."

Kidnap Attempts Made.

"Information received from the Netherlands shows that attempts were made by German agents and parachute troops to kidnap Her Majesty."

"This was also proved by the fact that any time members of the royal family went out in the palace garden for a moment they were shot at from roof tops and windows by Nazis and traitors."

"Under these circumstances," he said, "it was more and more difficult for the army high command to give the necessary protection to Her Majesty and, as fighting against parachute troops was becoming extremely difficult, it was decided to take Her Majesty to a safer place in the province of Zeeland. But when the Germans had found this out they started bombing this region."

Danger Avoided.

"In these circumstances it is clear that it was of paramount importance to bring Her Majesty to safety. Only in doing so the grave danger of Her Majesty being kidnaped and used as a hostage could be avoided."

To leave her beloved country in dire distress was certainly the hardest decision she has ever been called upon to make, and in making this decision Her Majesty undoubtedly did what in the grave circumstances was considered to be the best for our country."

Landon Seeks F. D. R. Refusal Of Third Term

President Replies Coldly to G.O.P. Terms for Defense Coalition.

WASHINGTON, May 22.—(P)—All M. Landon demanded a "no-third-term" pledge from President Roosevelt today, as the terms of Republican participation in any coalition defense directorate, and the President asserted, in a coldly polite reply, that he had no time for "political statements."

The exchange took place after Landon, Republican presidential candidate in 1936, had lunched with the chief executive at the latter's invitation. There had been speculation that the luncheon might lead to a "coalition cabinet" or some other form of joint Democratic-Republican direction of the huge rearmament program.

After the luncheon Landon issued a typewritten statement to a great cluster of reporters surrounding him in a near-by hotel lobby, saying that Republican leaders could not at present enter into any coalition arrangement without making themselves a party to the third-term movement—a movement which he held to be incompatible with democracy's "basic principles."

Not Conference Result.

At the same time, he explained that his statement was not the result of the luncheon conference, as his proposal had not been made to Mr. Roosevelt directly, and the third term had been discussed in only a casual and "off-hand" manner.

The Landon expression was shown to the President, and the White House statement was prepared quickly.

"The President regrets," it said, "that he has no time, just now, to give to the preparation of political statements. He is too busy engaged with problems of far greater national importance."

F. D. R. "Grateful."

The statement also said that Mr. Roosevelt was "very grateful to the ex-Governor of Kansas, who was his luncheon guest today, for his suggestions contained in the statement the Governor has written for the press."

"None of the subjects mentioned by Mr. Landon in his statement were discussed with the President at the luncheon," it added, "except only the seriousness of the military situation in Europe. The President was very glad to receive Mr. Landon."

Landon had said of the third term, and of a possible coalition:

"Unfortunately, any Republican leader who takes a position in the present setup from the standpoint of unselfish national service is making himself a party to this third or indefinite term move."

"If President Roosevelt is equally interested in unselfish service, he should publicly and forthwith eliminate himself as a third-term candidate. Instead of weakening his position, this action would strengthen it. The President would become the leader of the nation instead of the head of a party."

Nassau Negroes Fear War Will Take Funds

MIAMI, Fla., May 22.—(P)—Savings department employees in two southeast Florida post offices had a busy time today paying accounts to Nassau-born Negroes who were fearful the British government, to which they owe allegiance, might conscript their funds.

Postal officials assured the Negroes that their fears were groundless. Postmaster A. G. Shand, of Fort Lauderdale, agreed to address a gathering sponsored by Negro war veterans tonight in the hope he would prevent a recurrence of the withdrawals tomorrow.

Ending of Free Trade Seen If Nazis Win War

WASHINGTON, May 22.—(P)—Senator Pepper, Democrat, Florida, told a Maritime Day audience today a German victory in the European war would mean an end to free trade in the world.

Aboard the American Seaman, crack merchant ship, the senator said he was "saddened by the thought" that the conflict abroad would determine whether this government's maritime building program ultimately would profit the United States.

Gene Rietz, 21, Killed When Struck by Auto

Gene Rietz, 21, of Riverton road, Fulton county, was struck and killed by an automobile last night while walking on the Riverton road, near Fairburn, Fulton county police reported.

A short time after the accident, Police Chief J. M. Robinson, of Fairburn, said a man listed as J. F. Clinton, 23, of near Fairburn, was lodged in the Fairburn jail without bond pending an inquest into Rietz's death, scheduled for 2:30 o'clock this afternoon at a Fairburn funeral establishment.

Action To Halt New Pipe Line Denied by Court

Judge Mundy Upheld in Dissolving Writ Against Road Board.

The state supreme court yesterday denied a supersedeas action which would temporarily restrain the State Highway Board from granting permission to the South-eastern Pipe Line Company to cross under state roads with their gasoline transportation system now under construction.

The denial, made to a petition filed by Arthur Powell, of Atlanta, in behalf of 72 citizens, upheld a decision of Judge W. W. Mundy, of the Tallapoosa circuit, who dissolved a temporary injunction against the board after a hearing in his court.

Judge Mundy's opinion sustained a recent ruling by Attorney General Ellis Arnall that the road board was empowered to grant or deny the permission sought by the pipe line company, and set out that the board did have the power to grant the permits provided the pipe line would not prove a hazard to public health or safety.

The gasoline pipe line will run from Port St. Joe, Fla., through Georgia to the Tennessee line near Chattanooga.

'U. S. Is Going to War,' Says Communist Paper

MOSCOW, May 22.—(P)—Pravda, official Communist newspaper, said today "the United States is going to war even faster than in the great war." The article bore the caption: "A Nonfighting Ally for Britain and France."

LOWEST PRICE BUYS MORE IN STUDEBAKER CHAMPION

Saves 10% to 25% on gas...rides more comfortably

1 "Fred and I don't put on airs but we did want a nicer car than our means allowed. Seemed hopeless till we read about the Studebaker Champion."

2 "We never dreamed we could indulge in the distinction of a Studebaker. But the price tag on the Studebaker Champion proved that we could—easily."

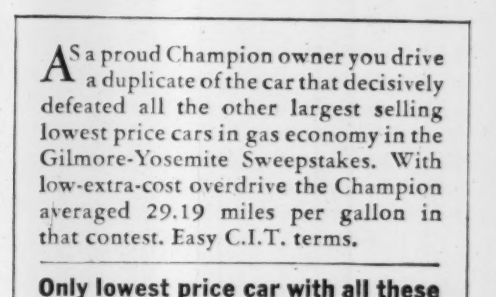

3 "Our new Champion is just as smartly designed and good-looking as a Studebaker Commander or President. But it is a lowest price car even if our friends doubt it."

4 "Fred counted up yesterday that we're saving over 20% on gas by driving a Champion. So today he let me buy the new sports outfit I've longed for."

5 "People stare enviously at our Champion everywhere. It's the coolest car to handle we ever had—and it rides so restfully!"

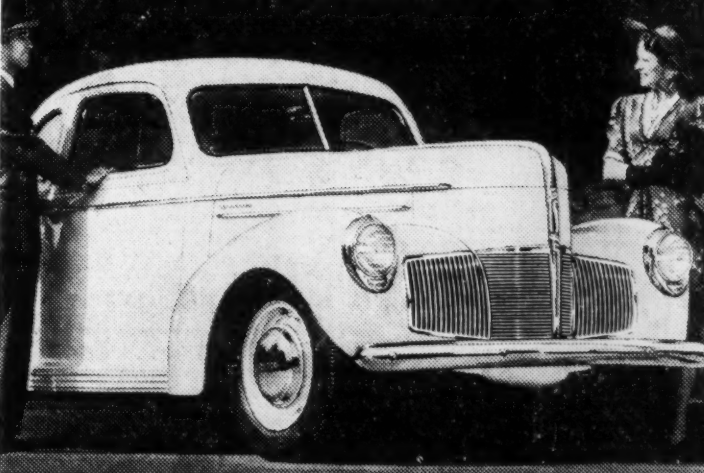

As a proud Champion owner you drive a duplicate of the car that decisively defeated all the other largest selling lowest price cars in gas economy in the Gilmore-Yosemite Sweepstakes. With low-extra-cost overdrive the Champion averaged 29.19 miles per gallon in that contest. Easy C.I.T. terms.

Justices Study Foster Child's Claim to Estate

$250,000 Is Sought for Little Girl Under Alleged Contract.

Appeal of an illegitimate child for a $250,000 inheritance allegedly pledged by her foster father was submitted to the Georgia supreme court yesterday, in a suit brought by Nellie Wolff, as "next friend" for the child, against the Savannah Bank and Trust Company and Minnie Lee Wamsley, executors of the estate of Max L. Wolff.

A statement of fact alleged that Wolff and his common-law wife, Nellie Montgomery Wolff, wanted a child and in 1930, heard of an infant's birth out of wedlock.

The child's mother agreed to a contract, the petition continued, under which the girl was to receive one-half Wolff's estate in addition to care and training.

When Wolff died last year, it was found his will excluded the child and left an estimated $500,000 estate to an office secretary.

Attorneys for the executors contended that Mrs. Wolff adopted the child in Chattanooga, Tenn., under her maiden name of Montgomery, and that the original contract by Wolff was a nullity. It is this original-contract attorneys for the child are seeking to have enforced.

Drennon Seeks Re-election as City Alderman

Sixth Ward Representative Offers for 'Indorsement Term.'

Raleigh Drennon, sixth ward alderman, yesterday formally announced his candidacy to succeed himself in the September 4 city primary. He previously had paid his entrance fee and qualified.

Elected unanimously by city council to succeed Gloor Hailey when he resigned to accept the post of Fulton county commissioner, Drennon yesterday said he will be a candidate for a full term—"a sort of indorsement term."

Previously Drennon served four terms as councilman from the old sixth ward, and when the 13 city wards were reduced to six seven years ago, he retired voluntarily from politics. The vacancy on the aldermanic board, however, attracted him, and he sought to fill Hailey's unexpired term, a position which he won.

During his years as a member of the council, Drennon served under Mayors L. B. Rastall, James L. Key and William B. Hartsfield. He has held membership on practically all important council committees.

He is a Shriner, Knight Templar and an Elk. He was the first active master of the Joseph C. Greenfield lodge, and is past master of Capital City Lodge No. 642, F. & A. M.

Active Civic Worker. Drennon has lived in Atlanta for 37 years and has resided in the same home in the sixth ward for the past 24 years. He also is active in civic circles.

"I have always believed the city should keep expenditures within receipts and my record will show that I have voted with that in view," Drennon said. "It shall be my pleasure and I consider it my duty to continue to administer affairs of the municipality in a business-like, honest and conscientious manner. That is my only campaign pledge coupled with faithful attention to the best interests of the citizens of our great city."

Drennon is the father of Raleigh Jr., who was graduated from Georgia Tech in 1929, and who was one of the mainstays of the Jackets' football squad. Another son, Luther, was graduated from Tech in 1932.

Putnam Voters Return Official To Their Posts

One Commissioner Is Defeated During County Primary.

SPECIAL TO THE CONSTITUTION. EATONTON, Ga., May 22.—A record-breaking number of voters cast ballots in the Putnam county primary yesterday, as the majority of the office holders were returned to their posts. Creating the most interest was the commissioners' race, in which only one of the incumbents was re-elected.

Winners in this contest for the three-man commission were C. E. Carnes, 824 votes; N. H. Horton, incumbent, 809, and Tom H. Resseau, 799. The other five candidates ran as follows: Frank A. Dennis, 709; C. B. Alford, 473; B. E. Gooche, incumbent, 419; J. N. Hawkins, 270, and John W. Manley, 176.

Tax Collector J. M. Gregory was re-elected to his post over H. T. Marshall by a vote of 1,201 to 302, while Sheriff J. L. Paschal was renominated over two opponents.

Tom A. Gregory Jr. defeated Wingfield Walker for county school superintendent, 997 to 505. Incumbent P. C. Garris did not seek re-election. W. C. Davis was re-elected clerk of superior court over John L. Johns, 1,131 to 382; Sidney T. Wingfield was elected county attorney over D. De Val, 1,095 to 364. Incumbent R. C. Whitman did not seek office for a new term. E. H. Jones won the coroner's post over John Rhodes by a vote of 768 to 745.

Births

Among recent births reported to the city health department are those in the following families: J. C. Hanson, College Park, daughter; R. L. Holcombe, Route No. 8, daughter; C. A. Lewis, 783 Curran street, son; C. B. Merck, Route No. 3, son; G. F. Mullins, 878 Neal street, son; T. H. Starnes, 320 Evans street, S. W. daughter; C. C. Whitmire, 1010 McDonough road, son; J. G. ## No War Millionaires!

The entire country will voice a loud "amen" to the declaration of President Roosevelt that nobody in this country must be permitted to grow rich upon world disaster. There must not be a single war millionaire in the United States, he declared. Neither, he added, should labor unions take tactical advantage of the emergency to strike for special wages or privileges withheld from the rest of labor. The president expressed confidence no labor union would do this.

The state of the world of today is too close to the precipice of utter disaster for any, save the most inhuman ghouls, to contemplate making a profit out of the agony of mankind. The situation of the United States and the urgent need for national rearming for defense is such that any one who would place personal profit ahead of service to the nation is unfit to call himself American.

It is reported from Paris that already the word "politician" has become a symbol of utmost reproach in that country. It is applied to those who placed partisanship, factional privilege or personal gain ahead of the nation's good during those days before the fatal May 10.

Now, in the United States, there is a danger of hysteria through fear. There is no need for this, provided the country unites as Americans and forgets all partisanship and all selfish motives. The only basis for fear in this country is not from the outside, but from internal failure. America, united, can so rearm herself that no possible earthly force will dare to infringe upon our sovereign rights.

The danger we should fear, however, is the danger that partisanship and greed among some few of our own people will so hinder and delay the national defense program that we shall, like Britain and France today, see the error of our ways only after it is too late.

If we hold firmly to this healthy fear we shall so unite the nation in the face of common danger there will never be ground for fear of any outside foe.

A New Air Service

There is now pending before the Civil Aeronautics Administration, a petition for the inauguration of a new daily air service, for passengers and mail, between Atlanta and Pittsburgh. Hearings have been held and it is expected the desired permit will be granted within the next few weeks.

It is stated that, if the service is inaugurated, there will be two regularly scheduled flights daily in each direction. The most modern ships, with capacity of 21 passengers, will be used on the route.

Inauguration of such a service would open up for air travel from Atlanta an important business area which is now not reachable on any direct route. It would bring Atlanta within three or four hours flying time of such cities as Pittsburgh, Cleveland, Charleston, W. Va., Youngstown, Erie, Buffalo, Detroit, Akron, etc.

More than this, it is planned to carry the new service through to Savannah, which would place the Georgia coastal city on a direct air route. Savannah has recently opened a new airport and that city is anxious for direct service, instead of the present shuttle service it has with Augusta, contacting through routes there.

It will constitute an important addition to air service at Atlanta if the new route is authorized and will add considerably to the importance of this city as the aerial crossroads of the southeast.

It is to be hoped the necessary permit is granted with as little delay as possible and that the new line ships begin regular service in and out of Candler field promptly.

While the powers come to death grips in the west, that faint rumble as of distant drums, in Rome, turns out to be the Duce, still punching the bag.

An Ohio promoter of pensions for everybody says his proposal will win the next time, hands down. And palms up, in that order.

In New York a fund-raising committee is selling tickets to a banquet that won't be held. When one considers the speeches that won't be delivered, it sounds like a buy.

For Aviation Training

The offer of all necessary land for the establishment of a federal aviation training field here, made unannounced by the Fulton county commission, evidences a spirit of national co-operation which is, in all probability, the most important factor needed if this nation is to rapidly strengthen its armed defenses.

At a time of peril such as this it is essential that the nation unite as one unit. This means the availability, for national service, of everything the nation has, in so far as it is needed. That includes everything, the possessions of smaller units of government as well as the possessions of the federal government, the possessions of individuals and, if needs be, life itself.

Fulton county is peculiarly well adapted as the site for a large aviation training center. In the first place the weather conditions in this area make possible flying practically all the year around. Secondly, the already keen interest and wide activity in flying in Atlanta, founded upon this city's important position as the southeastern hub of commercial aviation, provides a public background which would be of no small value to such a training field.

Many young Atlantans have already learned to fly and the presence of the Guggenheim Aeronautical school at Georgia Tech means that there are scores of young people qualifying here as private or commercial pilots. In time of emergency it would not take much additional training to make them fully qualified to fly the nation's ships of the air in time of war.

Fulton county has made a splendid offer and it is altogether probable the federal government, when the time comes for establishment of new training fields, will accept.

In the meantime every effort should be made to build and put into operation that long-deferred second flying field, on the site of old Camp Gordon, which is vitally needed, even without the pressure of defense program urgency.

Commissioned To Serve

On Monday, May 27, the 1939-40 class of cadets from the southern training college of the Salvation Army will be given commissions in that organization at dedication ceremonies to be held at the Baptist Tabernacle. Approximately seventy young people will become officers in the Salvation Army, to go to appointments in this territory to carry on their work of redemption of the souls of men and women.

It is to be doubted if any organization in the world has been of greater service to humanity than the Salvation Army. Inspired by a glowing faith in the power of the Bible to redeem anyone, no matter how degraded or debased, the Army has brought new hope to tens of thousands who had forgotten what hope meant.

Every year a new class of cadets graduates from the training school here. Each class has its own, specific name. The 1939-40 class is known as the "Hold Fast" session.

Never, in the history of the world, was there so great need to hold fast to the fundamentals of the spirit, which are the things that really matter, as now. Dark clouds of horror fill large portions of the world with the stench of blind, ruthless cruelty. Men's hearts, everywhere, are heavy and despair creeps closer to the souls of all who have believed in, and striven for, better ways of life for all mankind.

These young men and women, going forth from Atlanta this spring to begin their lifetime careers, can render service of incalculable value if they will but remember the slogan of their class and teach men's spirits to hold fast to the eternal verities when all other things are crashing in ruin.

Editorial of the Day

THE CRISIS IN FRANCE

(From The New York Herald Tribune.)

This is no time for criticism of the slowness with which Americans have realized either the quality of the German threat or the possibility of its success. In retrospect it stands beyond argument that the one sure way to save western civilization from a generation of darkness, as the one likeliest way to save American youth from the necessity of training and arming and dying in a desperate warfare, would have been to aid the Allies with every economic and industrial resource within our power, and that promptly.

But the country, comprehending neither the threat nor the desperate risk, was totally unready for such action and the time has gone by when such foresight might conceivably have prevented the grave military situation which exists today in northeastern France. Today Americans must look to the future and act as swiftly and decisively as they can to prepare themselves against future attack, incidentally lending every aid to the Allies that the actualities of war will permit.

The situation in France includes a measure of this same element of surprise and the incredible. The best military minds of France failed to envisage the actual attack, the new armored tanks impervious to ordinary anti-tank guns, the perfect co-ordination of air and earth, the tremendous speed and concentration of the onslaught. The threat of the fifth column which unmistakably hangs ominously over Paris and the entire nation has been suspected but never measured or appreciated until the fate of Holland spelled the lesson.

But France faced the incredible in machinery and organization in September, 1914, and won a historic victory. Hopes will be held high in America that, despite the closeness of the issue, once again the French spirit will prevail.

THE CAPITAL PARADE

By JOSEPH ALSOP AND ROBERT KINTNER.

ROOSEVELT ASKED TOO LITTLE

WASHINGTON, May 22.—The puzzle of the President's emergency national defense requests is not why they were so large. In view of the public apathy, the congressional partisanship and the peculiar presidential budgetary system which have prevailed in these last years, $1,182,000,000 is an extremely small sum to have to spend on our defense deficiencies. In truth, the real puzzle is why the President's requests were so modest.

It is not too much to say that they were shockingly small. When their extent became known, there was deep concern among army men and others familiar with our real national defense needs. And with good reason.

Essentially, we have three problems of national defense. In the order of their importance they are: (1) To defend our own country; (2) to defend parts of the American hemisphere such as Canada, whose independence is vital to our security; and (3) to defend the nonvital but important part of South America below the bulge, and to hold the trade lanes bringing us certain raw materials, such as the Pacific route along which rubber and tin travel from the Malay states. Supposing the Allied resistance should end and the British fleet fall into German hands, we are not now equipped to meet even the first of these problems. We are unprepared, with respect to dozens of crucial items, even to defend ourselves.

LET US MAKE HASTE An example of the deceptiveness of the President's national defense message is the passage dealing with airplanes. He talked, rather grandiosely in view of the existing production facilities, of an air fleet of 50,000 planes and an annual production capacity of the same extent. Yet, in the whole message, not one penny is specifically requested to be spent on planes. And, unless the money is forthcoming, the planes will not be built.

This sort of thing is decidedly serious in view of our present situation. If Germany wins the war before we can rearm, Charles A. Lindbergh to the contrary, we shall be a tempting target of attack. With an army rather weaker than Switzerland's and a navy far less powerful, we shall be a tempting target of attack. If the British fleet surrendered to Germany, the time for the task ahead will be short indeed, for the Navy Department believes the Germans could get the captured ships in working order in about a year.

Lest these considerations seem alarmist, it may be stated that they are now troubling the minds of the most cautious and conservative men in the administration. And it may be added for those who find it too disagreeable to consider the possibility of an attack on the United States, that Canada, now a belligerent, is virtually defenseless, and would be an even more logical object of a German onslaught. Small wonder that army men and others familiar with national defense problems were bitterly disappointed with the President's requests, which strangled almost the following much needed expenditures:

WHAT WE NEED Six hundred million dollars for full equipment of an army of 1,000,000 men and all needed seacoast defenses. Included in this total are such items as an extra $100,000,000 for anti-aircraft guns, another $200,000,000 for extra armor for our tanks, $30,000,000 for wool garments and blankets, $25,000,000 for portable hospitals, and $30,000,000 for gas masks. For some of these things expenditures now in prospect are utterly insufficient. Of others, such as the portable hospitals, the army has none in its storehouses and none on order.

Nine hundred and fifty million dollars for airplanes. In his message the President spoke vaguely of perhaps using part of his requested blank check of $1,000,000,000 for planes. But this sum is ridiculously small in the first place, and will be required, in the second, for handling the inevitable bottlenecks in the whole construction program.

Seven hundred and fifty million dollars for tanks. The great battle now in progress in Europe has already shown tanks to be all-important. The President asked nothing substantial for tanks, presumably because none can be finished until more armor-plate factories are built. But appropriating the money and starting the tank program now will expedite the eventual delivery, even if armor plate must be waited for.

These three extra appropriations, totaling $2,300,000,000, will take care of the army alone. The navy has been strangely modest in its requests, but in any realistic view its needs are also great. They should be investigated and met. Furthermore, prompt action is completely essential. If the defense services are given carte blanche tomorrow, we cannot be ready to defend ourselves in less than a year, or the hemisphere in less than two. And that is not soon enough.

Horses Are Nervous Beasts.

Some of my friends who are addicted to equestrianism have asked that an appeal for consideration, on the part of motorists, of the nervous systems of their mounts be made here. The request seems well founded on need.

Horseback riding is becoming more and more popular as a sport. Everybody and his wife, or girl friend, seem to be indulging at some time or other, in the delightful and healthful exercise. Keep an eye on the quieter dirt roads in the environs of the city of an evening, or Sunday afternoon, and you'll be surprised at the number of men and women boys and girls, who use those roads as bridge paths.

A dirt road is the better place to ride, both for the sake of the horse and for the safety, pleasure and convenience of the rider. Even dirt roads are not private and trucks and autos frequently have to use them.

Now the modern horse is reasonably familiar with a motor vehicle. But there are, unfortunately, some motorists who seem to take a delight in attempting to scare any horse they meet on their travels. They seem to think it is funny to make a horse shy, or bolt, by sudden sounding of horn, opening of cut-out or swerving of car.

And motorists who seem to take a delight in attempting to scare any horse they meet on their travels. They seem to think it is funny to make a horse shy, or bolt, by sudden sounding of horn, opening of cut-out or swerving of car.

Deliberately Dangerous. A friend of mine who rides frequently told me the other day how an automobile had deliberately swerved toward her mount when she was riding along a narrow bank, not more than two feet wide. She narrowly escaped disaster when her horse, understandably, jumped.

"That auto driver seemed as though he really wanted to knock off a leg of my horse," she complained.

Another told of a truck coming suddenly behind her, and backing—firing with deliberate intent, she thought—so that her animal ran away and threw her.

There are some places where it is unavoidable for equestrians to cross paved highways. Autoists should be exceptionally careful at these points. But I'm told lots of them are, apparently, exceptionally reckless, instead.

We are frequently admonished about the cruelty of running down a dog with a car, and urged to be careful of canine pets which may be roaming the highways. This is fine. We should do our utmost to protect doggie life. You don't know how long a mangled dog may suffer by the roadside before the merciful release of death.

And you don't know what youngster's heart may be broken by such tragedy for a beloved pet.

But it does seem to me we should be just as careful, or even more so, about horses. A crippled horse is a dead horse, you know. And a horse is, perhaps, more highly strung than the average dog.

Too, people don't ride dogs. When you endanger a horse bearing a rider, you endanger human life as well as animal.

Let's be careful, shall we, and consider, when driving through the neighborhoods apt to be popular with the equestrians?

While On The Subject.

While on the general subject of safety, it might be well to note here that next Sunday has been designated "Safety Sunday" for Georgia, under the sponsorship of the Citizens Traffic Safety Committee. The plan for a "Safety Sunday" was, it is understood, first a strictly Atlanta project, but other portions of the state displayed so much interest, and the state highway patrol highly commended the idea, it was made statewide.

Ministers are going to refer to the day from their pulpits and many organizations are stressing it and drawing as wide attention as possible to its implications.

It is a good thing. Especially on a Sunday. For, while statistics are not at hand at the moment, it seems to me Sunday is the day of most accidents. For one thing there are so many "Sunday drivers" on the roads.

Friend of mine told of seeing, last Sunday, three weeks while driving in from Savannah to Savannah Beach.

Inasmuch as more people ride horses, as well as autos, on Sundays, might it not be a good idea to start that extra careful driving in the vicinity of horseback riders on "Safety Sunday," too?

Anyway, it's an idea.

Twenty-Five Years Ago Today.

From the news columns of Sunday, May 23, 1915:

"London, May 22.—All Italy awaits the call to arms. The ministry has set its face for war, and the general mobilization of the army and navy by order of the King now is under way."

And Fifty Years Ago.

From the news columns of Friday, May 23, 1890:

"The editor of the Elberton Gazette frankly confesses that this is the season of the year when the country editor finds more pleasure in eating ice-cream than in looking up news for his dear readers."

Fun at the Front

Swiss bakers at Chur finished the one-millionth loaf of military bread made since Switzerland mobilized last September. Then the bakers took the day off.

That night, a Swiss artilleryman made an unprintable and highly uncomplimentary remark about Swiss bread bakers as he extracted something hard from his mouth, changed his tune when he found he had bitten into a silver five-franc piece (about $1.10), was delighted to get a day's leave for having found the 1,000,000th loaf.

FAIR ENOUGH

By WESTBROOK PEGLER.

Right To Expose Graft

NEW YORK, May 22.—The May 10 issue of The Labor Union, of Dayton, Ohio, which calls itself an official publication of the American Federation of Labor, prints a letter to Will Green, president of the AFL, from the Summit County Trades and Labor Assembly.

This letter says the assembly has observed the "yellow journalism" of Westbrook Pegler for some time, and argues that nobody has any right to expose graft and corruption in the racket unions of the American Federation of Labor who cannot prove that he has first criticized Richard Whitney for his thievery and publicized "the findings of the temporary national economic committee investigating the shady practices of monopoly" and the report of the La Follette committee.

"The affairs and problems of the labor movement are its own," the letter says. "Neither Pegler nor anyone outside that movement, having as their basic premise an anti-union bias, has any right to interfere."

Front For Criminals

The answer to this is that the American Federation of Labor is not the labor movement, but a front for panderers, thieves, extortioners, and thugs who prey not only on employers and the United States government but on the rank and file workers as well, reducing thousands of nominally free Americans to the status of sub-human robots who pay tribute to brigands for the right to toil, are not allowed to vote on union questions and risk terrible injury or death if they make so bold as to try.

These citizens are now so furious at the abuse of their human rights by brutal grafters that they are almost up to the point of fighting it out with nickel ball bats.

The answer is that the sins of Richard Whitney and Wall Street, of monopoly and the labor spies employed by anti-union associations of employers have nothing to do with the case and have been used too long as a stall to distract attention of the dues-paying suckers from the merciless greed and inhuman cruelty of crooks holding key positions in unions of the AFL.

I have shown up a few spectacular criminals who acquired great power over the livelihood and the very lives of decent Americans, not merely in local unions but in the national council of the American federation of labor, against whom not one word ever was said, either in the council or in the national convention of that body, although their rotten character and criminal records were notorious. But I haven't even started yet. I will show that the AFL has permitted the growth through Tammany methods of a criminal influence within the organization so strong and so dangerous to the physical safety of the honest leaders that the national body itself is afraid to make a move to throw these loathsome gangsters out.

Afraid To Protest

Because George Browne, the president of the Stage Hands and Music Employees' Union, has no criminal records the national executive council permitted him to sit in on its deliberations in Washington last week, although Mr. Browne personally appointed not only the pander, Willie Bluff, to a position of greater power than his own, and personally appointed as chief govt. I will show that the AFL has permitted the growth through Tammany methods of a criminal influence within the organization so strong and so dangerous to the physical safety of the honest leaders that the national body itself is afraid to make a move to throw these loathsome gangsters out.

Labor leaders are using official labor publications to swindle their members out of the truth about their own weakness or crookedness by denouncing as enemies of labor everyone who puts the finger on a thief.

These are the answers to the Summit County Trades and Labor Assembly's letter to Will Green, but another word is required.

"We will solve our own problems in our own way," says the assembly.

The answer to that is: The hell you will! You will solve them honestly, and soon, or the solution will be provided by a rank and file rebellion and the congress of the United States. You aren't the masters of the rank and file. You are their servants, and you had better improve the service or you will be tossed out, too.

ONE WORD MORE

OUR WORST FEAR—IS FEAR

France and England face what they announce are their darkest hours.

In the United States, where sentiment largely favors the Allied cause, there are many dismayed, confused and afraid. There is in this unreasonable tendency toward fear a very present danger to this country. It partly is the result of the propaganda from Europe. Part of it is our own feeling of inadequacy. It is utterly without reason. There is reason for grave concern but no reason for fear.

Our worst fear—is fear.

Fear is contagious. It is one of the chief weapons of the forces in Europe. Adolf Hitler, in that amazing book, "Mein Kampf," begun while in jail in 1923, explains all his methods. One of them is to send in agents to create confusion and fear.

This nation has learned, in time, what must be done. We must arm. We must arm not merely to prevent invasion, but must arm so well it will discourage the thoughts of invasion anywhere on the American continent.

To that end we must have closer co-operation with South and Central American countries. We must get rid of the blithering asses in congress who heed the voices of small but articulate minorities and refuse to make trade agreements with South American nations so that relationships may be cemented.

This hysteria which seems to be growing in the minds of many of our people is inexcusable. It is, in a sense, an expression of inner failure and fear. Fear is contagious. There is no reason to be afraid. There is every reason to be resolute.

Business continues good, retail sales are growing. We know what we must do.

Fear is our worst fear. It can do us more present danger than Germany.

THE LONE OSTRICH

This country is going on. Efforts are made now to divide public opinion. Behind the statement of the embittered Lone Eagle, Charles A. Lindbergh, may be seen the hand of Herbert Hoover, whose great and good friend he is. Hoover and Candidate Dewey constantly have said the same thing.

They say our troubles are domestic and to forget foreign affairs. The Lone Eagle would have us believe he has become the Lone Ostrich.

It was a clever effort, with the Republican board of strategy behind it, to split public opinion at a time when Roosevelt seemed to have achieved the desired national unity. Mr. Lindbergh may have his say but it is well to know the close and intimate connection between him and Mr. Hoover. It is well, too, to know that Mr. Lindbergh dislikes Mr. Roosevelt. The Hoover alliance is opposition to the President explains much about the speech by the erstwhile Lone Eagle.

We will achieve national unity. We know, from the lessons of Europe, that verbal assurances of safety mean nothing; that non-aggression pacts are valueless; that being neutral is no guarantee of safety.

We have learned that isolation is no longer isolation. We know, too, that it would have been folly to have sent an expeditionary force abroad. Our sympathies are with the Allies. Our resources are going to them in an ever-increasing flow. No sensible person wants us to commit the folly of going to war. Every person of judgment wants us to arm fully and without stint.

COMMON-SENSE THINKING

We need most of all a reform in the character of government. Democracy, through the dishonest attitude of many politicians, has been paraded as the right to do as one pleases.

It does not at all mean that. It ought to mean that men are elected to office and given power and the right to enforce laws. Today we all know that a great majority of our politicians are afraid to be truthful with voters; do not have the courage to take a stand if they know it is right—but unpopular.

Government can ruin a democracy if the people do not will to make democracy work. The politicians in government can break down democracy faster than anyone else by disillusioning the people and making them turn, in anger and discontent, to some other creed.

NO HYSTERIA NEEDED

The fifth column exists. But it can be combated calmly. There is no need for hysteria. We can keep our feet on the ground.

It is quite possible the immigrants and refugees who have come to this country are more interested in defending democracy than many of those born here but careless of what democracy means. The fact they are aliens does not mean they are engaged in subversive activity.

Our aliens are not as dangerous as some of our own fools, swayed by subversive influence and willing to follow a creed such as Hitler's.

It is a time for seeking out all fifth column influences and members.

But we can keep our good sense and keep our feet on the ground.

Public Opinion Doesn't Shame Him Unless His Own Conscience Agrees With It

By ROBERT QUILLEN.

Having no official or divinely-appointed standard by which to measure his excellence, man satisfies his vanity by comparing himself with his neighbors.

In his tolerant youth, before opinions hardened into prejudices and snobbery becomes conviction, the standard he employs for comparison may be muscular strength or athletic skill or style in dress or any other measure of excellence peculiar to his time and locality. But in maturity he proves his superiority by means of three standards that are universal and timeless. They are wealth, birth and righteousness.

These are relative terms, of course; and as a one-eyed man is king in a country of the blind, so the son of a section boss feels superior in a community of the unwashed; one who owns ten acres feels superior among hungry share-croppers; and one whose only virtue is honesty feels superior to those who are wholly and conspicuously vile.

Birth, wealth and righteousness are the yardsticks of vanity, and the commonest is righteousness because it is

CIO REPRESENTATIVE SEES DANGER IN EDITORIALS

Editor Constitution: Your editorials of yesterday and today, respectively entitled "A Discard Note" and "Defense Plan Handicaps," work dangerous tendencies of preparation for national defense.

On the one hand, you apparently advocate offering industrialists unlimited opportunity for profits by removal of restrictions imposed by an act of congress, and on the other you invite exploitation of labor by removal of legal barriers against long hours and low wages, indicating that labor should be willing, if necessary, to work from 10 to 16 hours a day, while sacrificing various protections now afforded by government.

While accepting labor's right to collective bargaining, you directly contradict this by inferring that John L. Lewis' statement that this right should be maintained in war industries is "close to treason."

Re-allying British and American experience in the last war, we need to remind ourselves that, at first casting aside labor safeguards, Britain had to restore them because man and woman power was being destroyed in British factories and production slowed down. Since then technological efficiency and industrial output per man hour have vastly increased with resultant displacement of workers until there are now over eleven million unemployed in our country, many of whom are skilled workers.

In regard to organized labor and factory output, there are abundant evidences of the remarkable results in efficiency and production obtained through democratic collective bargaining relationships. Many of the best results in American industry are being secured through union-management co-operation. Furthermore, in time of real emergency, organized labor is willing to work overtime and the federal wage-hour act makes provision for flexible overtime to be included in union contracts. The reverse side of the picture is unbridled freedom for employers to exploit both profits and workers under the cloak of patriotism, with resultant concentration of wealth on the one hand and debasement of working and living standards on the other.

SUNDAY SILHOUETTE BORE STAMP OF TRUTH

Editor Constitution: As a visitor to Georgia who has been helped by this warm, soft climate, I want to express my deep appreciation of another very helpful influence—your Sunday "Silhouette." Nothing could be more encouraging and strengthening to a people's morale than such a reminder that death has no sting—the grave no victory over the spirit, and that truth alone will make you free.

I am very happy to have read your inspiring words. They will, I am fully assured, be of the greatest value in this emergency, because they bear the stamp of "immortal truth."

Faithfully yours,

CONGRATULATES STORES FOR PART IN COTTON WEEK

Editor Constitution: This being "Cotton Week"—congratulations to all who have and are still taking part in cotton.

Congratulations to the merchants. Take the retail stores, for instance. They have not only featured cotton in their ads; they have bought and sold and are buying and selling more and more cottons every day.

Just look at the windows in Atlanta; they are lovely. They feature from the raw product to the finished articles.

Every window in the city is beautiful blooming in cotton.

Aren't we thankful that we are Americans and can grow white cotton without the stain of blood?

Justice Jenkins Urged Defense 5 Years Ago

Speech by Jurist Was Warning of Some 1940 Happenings.

Five years ago Justice W. Frank Jenkins, of the Georgia supreme court, visualized some of the things that might be happening in 1940 and warned that the United States should begin building up its national defense.

It was recalled at the capitol yesterday that in 1935 Justice Jenkins made a speech before the Georgia Bar Association, in which he talked at length about armaments and the cultivation of friendship between North and South America.

Reads Like Warning.
This speech was found in a volume in the State Library and it read like a fortune teller's warning. Here are a few of the things Justice Jenkins had to say in that speech:

"I do not believe that the way to avoid war is to invite it. This country should . . . continually keep itself relatively well armed."

"We should not dare to invite war and disaster by voluntarily exposing ourselves to the peril of attack."

"We should not be allowed to forget that in our last war, after two years of intensive and unrelenting preparation, and after expending nearly $30,000,000,000, we found ourselves at the end still flying Allied airships and firing Allied cannon."

"Cultivate Friendship."
"We should not permit ourselves to assume that in any future war the foe will be held back for any similar period in order that we may be given free and unrestricted opportunity to prepare our defense."

"The old idea that in some great emergency we could spring to arms in our defense is rendered doubly preposterous under the conditions of modern warfare."

"Cultivate friendship and encourage commerce with our neighbors of North and South America. There should exist some real affinity in friendship between the brotherhood of republics comprising the western portion of the globe."

SCHOOL BUDGET.

MACON, Ga., May 22.—(AP)—Bibb county commissioners have approved an increase of $13,087 to $412,441.21 in the school budget for the next year. An additional $148,000 is expected from state sources.

COURTHOUSE REPAINTED.

MOULTREE, Ga., May 22.—(AP)—Workmen are repairing and repainting the Colquitt county courthouse. County Engineer Hobson Leavitt arranged for a crew of WPA workers to give the building a thorough renovation.

We Must Create a New World

By DOROTHY THOMPSON.

S. S. WASHINGTON, May 20.—More than untold hundreds of men have died in the last 10 days, in Norway, in Holland, in Belgium and France. A world has died. The formulas and clichés by which we have been limping along have proved themselves tragically false. We must revise our thought and our action.

There is no such thing as purely defensive warfare.

This should have been demonstrated to all the world, first in Spain and later in Poland. Even the most willful must see it now.

The French have based their political and military strategy upon the idea of defense and security. Their defenses have cost them billions and are formidable beyond description. No Frenchman is willing to carry war to another country's soil, but he will die with 'superb heroism to defend his own.

There is a law of physics, namely, that a moving body has vastly greater power than a static body. In this world of machines, he who strikes first, with all the power at his command, gains an advantage which cannot be compensated by superiority of numbers (vide Spain), nor by equality of armaments if the latter are used purely defensively.

Bombing planes will reach their objectives in such proportions as to make the raids effective. If the aggressor is willing to pay a high enough toll of lives and machines, he cannot be kept wholly from his destructive work by pursuit planes.

Or, an air arm purely for defense must be vastly stronger than an air arm for purposes of offense and must be prepared not only to defend itself against the disadvantages of the surprise attack but to carry an equally vigorous attack to the aggressor's own soil.

The army of France is superior to the army of Germany, man for man, in training and in morale. It is greatly inferior in numbers, both of divisions and machines, more than its political or military leaders dreamed or told the people. But that inferiority is insufficient to explain the apocalyptic advance of the Nazis. In the war of movement and mechanics the offense has an overwhelming advantage.

INDEPENDENT NATION A MYTH

The independent small nation is a myth and presumes the absence of evil in this world. It cannot defend its soil, its institutions or its culture.

The small nations of Europe, judged by the standards, have greater justification for their existence than have the large ones. They have a higher standard of education, a more nearly equal distribution of wealth and culture, are less susceptible to catastrophe.

Good Morning

By LOUIE D. NEWTON.

I am grateful to number among my friends Dr. J. Carlile, editor of the Baptist Times, London, England. He is one of the elder statesmen among British Baptists. I met him first at Stockholm, in 1923. He is far advanced in years, but like Caleb, son of Jephunneh, he is "well able to take this mountain." He holds many honors bestowed not only by his fellow Baptists, but by the Christian community in England, and even by the government.

Writing under the engaging title "Thoughts on the War," Dr. Carlile says:

"I share the feeling of horror and disgust of my American friends over the international situation. Some of my friends are quite anxious that I should know that this war might have been avoided. I quite agree, but wonder whether there ever was a war in history that might not have been avoided. . . . Wrongs have never been righted by being left unchallenged. All social reforms have resulted from the action of people who were convinced that it was their duty not to remain neutral, but to go out and fight against evil. . . ."

"Many churches in England have made special efforts to raise money for German missions which would close down unless support came from America and Britain."

England does not hate the German people, but she does hate with undying hatred all that is represented by the persecution of the Jews, the concentration camps, the violation of Poland, Czechoslovakia, and our other neighboring nations. No German missionary in any part of the British Empire has been expelled because of his nationality. The majority of them are going on with their work as usual, aided by subscriptions from this country and from America. Our German brethren working in the Cameroons have received help from England to the extent of hundreds of pounds since Hitler came into power and, as a matter of fact, are receiving help at the present time. Our churches desire to maintain that unity of the spirit which is stronger than the ties of nationality or of race. We recognize the appalling difficulty of German Baptists. . . . Our pulpits and platforms are free. . . .

"Two obligations rest upon us: the first, to do all within our power to win the war; the second, to save our ideals from becoming militarized. When the end of the strife comes—and we pray it may be soon—there will be problems at our own doors on both sides of the Atlantic which will demand the highest courage and the truest consecration. . . ."

And when you read this column, God willing, I shall be in conference in Atlantic City with friends from every portion of the globe, seeking God's will and way in trying to meet the present crisis for our Baptist people and all Christian friends in the war-torn lands, and around the encircling world. God grant us wisdom and courage to do the right.

phic social upheaval, are more lightly taxed and are better governed; but whether they are hard, civilized and armed, like the Danes; or rich and casual, like the Dutch, they cannot sustain their existence.

Neutrality is a myth. It presumes the universal rule of international law, and this presumes the power to enforce it by nations stronger individually or collectively than any potential aggressor.

Germany, a country of 65,000,000 people in 1938, has absorbed 63,000,000 of other peoples since then, many of them neutrals, by offensive terror or by offensive warfare.

The totalitarian state alone is capable of effectively waging the totalitarian war.

WAR BETWEEN POPULATIONS

This war of a whole population against whole populations by every conceivable means of military, economic, propagandist and terrorist action demands, first, the complete subjection of war-making nations to a single authority; complete control over the entire financial, industrial and labor life; the turning of the whole people into a war machine, in which the working population from top to bottom is treated and paid like an army, its officers and industries becoming primarily munitions factories used only secondarily for the production of goods for human consumption.

Against this system, in war, no form of free enterprise conducted for personal profit and or in the interest of individual consumers, and no system of socialism conducted in the interest of the collective standard of life can survive.

No primarily commercial or primarily agricultural nation, or nation devoted to the production of quality goods, can survive in modern war, against highly industrialized mass-production nations.

Commercial nations, like the British, supply themselves by buying what they need with reserves and credits distributed throughout the world. Since they have no control over the political programs or whims of their suppliers, they will not pass a neutrality act or suddenly interfere with the normal credit system, and thus, in effect, blockade or partially blockade them.

QUANTITY BEATS QUALITY

The British airplanes are, figuratively speaking, Rolls-Royces—the Spitfire and the Hurricane. This war proves that a hundred Ford cars are better for war than 50 Lincolns.

The command of the seas may win a long war of attrition but it is no defense against the destruction of the nation that possesses it.

It is entirely possible that before this summer is over the British people will be confronted with the choice of giving up their fleet, accepting dictated terms or subjecting their factories, cities and populations to a reign of terror from the air unprecedented in human history.

The Nazis demonstrated first in Germany that their own population could be subjugated by terror, intimidation and propaganda. Wars can possibly be won by terrorism and by the destruction of factories and communications by dynamiters dropped from parachutes into the midst of a civil population.

The nation whose all-powerful leadership has no respect for human life has an advantage, in war, over peoples who hold life sacred, as the kidnaper has the advantage over the parents of the child he holds.

The power of persecution, terrorism, extortion and the holding of hostages has been demonstrated for seven long years to a complacent world watching and rewatching its hands in the blood of just men, or futilely rushing around with stretchers to pick up the victims.

NATIONS HELD AS HOSTAGES.

Whole nations can be held as hostages in totalitarian war.

Military alliances for defensive purposes are useless against a huge union, singly directed.

Military alliances for defensive purposes mean division in command, lack of completely integrated financial and economic action, incapacity in striking power and an enormous field for disruptive propaganda.

The concept that money is beyond good and evil and that economics can function regardless of human purpose is blown up with the cities, factories and the bleeding bodies of men.

The airplanes that dropped bombs on Dutch towns were made in factories rationalized with American loans; the trucks that transported the aggressors over neutral frontiers were manufactured—some of them—by American-owned factories; the machine tools to make the machines on which the machines of war were made came, in large part, from America.

What does all this mean? That we must all be Nazis or accept the Nazi rule?

No—not unless Lucifer won the war against God.

AN ERA IS OVER.

It means that an era is over and that a new one has begun, in which the world will be united and free, with all the rich diversity of human cultures but with the rights of nations strictly limited and the world policed; or it will be united and enslaved, with no rights for any one.

It means that there must be as sublime an imagination for good and as great a will for world-wide justice and freedom as there has been for evil.

It means that this war is a revolution, which will not be won or lost in Europe but won or lost on a world-wide scale.

It means that political action, at this moment, is as important as armaments.

The dark beast of the Nazi world must not be allowed to crouch upon its exhausted victims and feed upon them for new conquests. It must be attacked—first of all by the certain knowledge that it stands utterly alone and without friends; that all its victories are temporary, because men will not live on for new conquests; and that the full economic, financial, commercial and machine power of the United States is to be used, however long it takes, for the establishment of a world fit for human beings.

FOR WHAT THEY DIE.

Those who are fighting must know for what they die; they must know that they are not dying as units of an expiring world but dying for a new world—our own new world, growing out of great traditions expanded and renewed, dying not for yesterday but for tomorrow, not for nationalism but for commonwealth, not for money but for a decent human life, not for domination but for union with equality.

If we are not prepared to accept that responsibility, to dare for countervision, then give the world to Hitler, to his vast nightmare of servitude and oppression!

Sloan Demands Intelligent U. S. Defense Drive

Declares German Victory Would Be 'Catastrophe to Civilization.'

NEW YORK, May 22.—(AP)—Alfred P. Sloan Jr. said today any other result in the world struggle than victory "for the standard-bearers of democracy" would be a "catastrophe to civilization."

Addressing the annual meeting of the National Industrial Conference Board, the tall, silver-haired chairman of General Motors Corporation called for "intelligent and aggressive preparedness in defense of American security and our way of living."

He said the essential element of national leadership is "foresight," and continued:

"Perhaps in the days to come, we will wonder how we justified the attitude of yesterday in relation to the world situation. The argument might well be advanced that a more realistic attitude on the part of the world's democracies toward the problem of preparedness in the face of the threatening storm might have avoided the catastrophe."

Asserting America has surpassed other lands because of its free enterprise system, under democracy, Sloan condemned government "deterrents to enterprise in this country," and said while the present world situation may bring new centralized controls, "it is of the utmost importance that all emergency powers and controls be relinquished automatically upon the conclusion of the emergency."

The record of the past few years gives little confidence that such a result would ensue."

Urging unfettering of business enterprise, he said complete modernization of American industrial plants, superimposed upon consumer industries "would employ all available labor for years."

Dr. Virgil Jordan, economist and president of the conference board, a research organization supported primarily by private industry, said from developments in Europe "we should see at last the meaning of the Frankenstein monster which men have created for themselves in the modern state."

Rivers Defies 'Liberty' Union On Alien Stand

When he speaks today before the Georgia Prosecutors' Association in Macon.

3. Braxwell Deen, director of the State Department of Public Welfare, said he planned immediately to instruct county welfare directors to drop from social security beneficiary rolls all persons not American citizens. He also suggested that every person applying for an occupational license in Georgia should be required to furnish an affidavit proving American citizenship.

4. Captain Ben Seabrook, head of the Atlanta Police Identification Bureau, said approximately 25 aliens had visited the police station to have their fingerprints taken, but he advised others to wait until further notice, since the bureau was not yet organized for this additional duty.

5. Lon Sullivan, commissioner of the Department of Public Safety, conferred with district officials of the state patrol on plans for fingerprinting and registering aliens at sub-stations, as well as the Atlanta headquarters.

6. Ben T. Huiet, commissioner of labor, ordered officials of the employment service division to determine if any undesirable aliens were registered with public employment offices in the state.

In his statement regarding the Civil Liberties Union Governor Rivers said:

"They (the union) boast of their defense of the enemy of our country who try to destroy it from within. They have tried to keep out of jail every fifth columnist and notorious criminal who ought to be in jail, from Sacco-Vanzetti to the Scottsboro rapists and Angelo Herndon.

"We will be ready for these enemy 'parachutists' if they try to 'bail out' in Georgia," he warned. Attorney General Arnall said his department was investigating carefully reports that came in to him, but warned that the campaign should not develop into a "witch hunt."

Instead of creating a wave of fear, Arnall said he preferred to go about the investigation calmly, and asked that people co-operate with him by reporting only those cases of un-Americanism which had some foundation.

The attorney general said he received many telephone calls and letters from persons who had overheard another say he wished Hitler would win the war. He emphasized that he wanted legitimate information, but did not want letters or calls that were instigated by prejudice or ill-will against some neighbor.

"If we wind that there are those in our midst who do not like our government and who do not subscribe to its fundamentals, we propose to let the people know who they are," he asserted. "An idle, careless and indifferent people easily can lose the heritage of free government."

The telegram Governor Rivers received from the American Civil Liberties Union declared that "your proclamation ordering the fingerprinting and registration of aliens strikes us as unjustifiably taking advantage of the war fever in order to circumvent the law which gives the federal government sole power over aliens."

ALIENS HERE SCURRY TO WIN CITIZENSHIP

Alien residents of Atlanta have all but mobbed the staff of the clerk's office of the United States district court, which is processing applications for naturalization papers like handbills, Deputy Clerk Fred Beers Jr. said yesterday.

Stirred into action by the war abroad and the Governor's decree, foreigners living here have swamped the office's small staff with requests for information on how to trade their nationality for a new one.

JEWISH VETERANS BACK RIVERS, F. D. R.

Atlanta Post No. 112 of the Jewish War Veterans of the United States has adopted a resolution, pledging its support to Governor Rivers in his campaign to drive fifth columnists out of Georgia, it was announced yesterday.

The organization went on record as endorsing President Roosevelt and the Governor in "their militant stand against the fifth column and all other subversive organizations."

Members said they proposed to bring to the attention of Georgia authorities the menace of Nazi, Fascist, Communist and fifth column activities and to co-operate in eradicating the evil.

government, Mayor Hartsfield told the WPA personnel of the Historical Records Survey in an address yesterday.

"The world today is faced with the deadly menace of bandit nations on the march, but there exists also a more subtle and even more deadly peril," he declared. "That is the activity of the 'fifth columns.' In this case alien and enemy agents go secretly about their task of demoralizing a nation from within."

"These are the men who preach foreign ideologies, who seek the overthrow of our government and the substitution of a foreign system of rule by oppression."

"We in America have a very practical weapon at our disposal to use in defeating the activities of foreign enemies in our midst. That weapon is education."

Mayor Hartsfield praised the work of the Historical Records Survey in bringing to the average citizen a more thorough understanding of American government, and in preserving the records of the nation's past.

He was introduced by Ivan Alory board of the Historical Records Survey.

Ralph McGill, executive editor of The Constitution, will address the WPA project workers at 11 o'clock tomorrow morning.

Forgotten Dads Will Get Break During Contest

time. If you think your father is the best a son or daughter could have—and of course you do—why not tell him about it and, at the same time, tell the Father's Day Contest Editor of The Constitution. If your letter—judged entirely upon content and not upon elaborate presentation—is tops, you may be in for a slice of the total of $160 in cash.

Four Contest Groups. There are four groups in this attempt to give Dad credit where credit is due. One group is composed of sons and daughters 12 years of age and under; the second is for those between 13 and 18 years of age; the third is devoted to young men and women between 19 and 25; and the last is for everybody over 25.

In each of the four groups, the first prize for the best letter is $25 in cash, and remember your Dad gets one of those summer outfits. The second prizes are for $10 each, and again Dad gets some presents. The four third prizes are for $5 each, and still four Dads get in on the gravy.

Many other fathers will receive gifts, even though the letters about them are not included in the cash awards. For instance, your letter may not win money for you, but it may be good enough to be awarded a Father's Day present. Yesterday a partial list of these awards was published, and, as more come in, they will be printed, too.

Naturally employees and relatives of employees on The Constitution staff are not eligible for this contest. It's exclusively for your sons and daughters who are going to tell in your own words why you think your Dad is best.

June 5 Deadline. The contest closes June 5, and then six careful judges will go over the entries. The winners will be announced June 9 and that week—before Father's Day—the best letters will be published in this newspaper.

So let's get together and give Dad a great big hand, a hand with a fountain pen in it and holding a piece of white paper. Just use the hand on one side of the paper, please, and if you typewrite the letter make it double-spaced. Then mail it to The Constitution and let Father know he's a pretty important guy, after all.

Post in Council Will Be Sought By Blanchard

Sixth Ward Businessman To Oppose Frank Wilson.

Howard Blanchard, 44, businessman and salesman, yesterday announced his candidacy for council from the sixth ward to succeed Frank Wilson, incumbent. Blanchard said he will qualify for the September 4 primary.

Asserting that he is not offering as a politician, Blanchard said he is seeking to serve as a taxpayer and businessman, and has no alignments of any kind.

He is a member of the Morning-side Baptist church, a Mason and a member of Gate City Post No. 72, American Legion.

For 10 years he has lived at his home, 812 Courtenay drive, N. E. He is married and has two children. During his residence in the sixth ward, he has taken a leading part in civic affairs, but his entry for the councilmanic post is his first political venture.

"Without alignments, I will be free to vote as my conscience directs, if elected, and I pledge the people of Atlanta independent and practical representation in the interest of efficient and economical city government," he said.

County, Peace Officers Meet in Valdosta Today

Special to THE CONSTITUTION. VALDOSTA, Ga., May 22.—The Georgia County and Peace Officers' Association will open its two-day annual convention here Thursday morning.

Thursday's speakers will include H. J. McIntyre, of Thomasville, associate judge of the Georgia court of appeals; Frank E. Gabrels, president of the Georgia County Commissioners' Association; Major Lon E. Sullivan, director of the State Department of Public Safety; John C. Marsh, of Atlanta, United States Treasury Department; and Robert A. Guerin, of the F. B. I.

Officers will be elected, and the 1941 convention city chosen, at the Friday morning session.

Cuba has limited the speed of solid-tired trucks on highways to 15 miles an hour.

CHURCH ANNIVERSARY.

LEXINGTON, Ga., May 22.—Bethany Baptist church, six miles northeast of Lexington, will celebrate its 152d anniversary with home-coming day Saturday. Services will begin at 10 o'clock, with the sermon by Dr. W. H. Faust, secretary of the department of evangelism of the Georgia Baptist Convention. An old-fashioned dinner on the grounds will follow, and in the afternoon Dr. John D. Meil, of Athens, will speak.

Rickenbacker Urges Air Mail Training for 150,000 New Pilots

Teach Flying In All Weather, He Tells U S

War Pilots Need Action, He Says, Urging Use of Bombers.

NEW YORK, May 22.—(UP)—Captain Edward V. Rickenbacker, World War ace, today recommended the training of 150,000 fighting pilots in the United States by a vastly expanded air mail system in which letters addressed to points more than 100 miles distant from metropolitan centers would be delivered exclusively by air.

Speaking at a press conference preliminary to next week's national aviation forum of the National Aeronautics Association at Washington, D. C., Rickenbacker said:

"Let the government turn over its pilots to the air transport organizations, give them its bombers to carry the mail and put the pilots into action. Pilots must keep flying to remain pilots. Give them parachutes and let them go out with the mail day and night, rain or shine, in foul weather and good."

"Some Will Die." "That way we'll kill some pilots but it will be a small percentage of what we are going to lose when the time comes—God forbid."

Rickenbacker, general manager of Eastern Airlines, declared that the modern commercial transport pilot "isn't worth a damn for wartime use."

"He is trained to fly with markers, beacons and beams," the World War flyer said, "and in wartime they don't have those advantages." So he recommended that the mail pilots be trained to fly without special assistance from the ground.

"We should take the boys who come from our flying schools," he continued, "and set up a secondary air transportation system—call it a feeder system—for carrying the mail. There are 50,000 post offices outside metropolitan areas."

These towns of 1,500 to 2,500 population and more should be connected with the trunk lines which now carry the mail. "Give them the service for the cost of first-class postage. The air lines would be glad to carry it for three cents a letter and would make money on it, so it wouldn't cost the government anything beyond an original $100,000,000."

Rickenbacker estimated that the nation now has about 8,000 pilots capable of becoming military fliers. He based his estimate of a needed 150,000 on the current demand for 50,000 planes, explaining that the modern plane will outlast three fliers. The present difficulty of the Allies, he said, is due to lack of personnel.

"Their planes are all right," he said, "but they are flying them men 12 and 24 hours a day. The planes can stand it but the men can't."

In addition to 150,000 pilots, he said, the nation would need ground personnel numbering 175,000, including mechanics, meteorologists and airport attendants.

Rickenbacker and Thomas H. Beck, magazine publisher who is chairman of the forum, estimated that 5,500 air fields are needed. At present there are 2,200.

"There should be big enough to permit blind flying, one of the big factors in military aviation, which cannot be stopped by weather," Rickenbacker said.

Beck reported that the United States army now has about 2,700 airplanes "and of these 2,600 are outmoded now."

"Of anti-aircraft guns we have less than 400," he added, "and that wouldn't be enough to protect Boston. We need several hundred thousand guns to protect our vast frontiers."

"No new coastal defense rifles have been built in the United States since 1915. The range-finders on most of these have a maximum of seven miles. Our two good coastal guns have a range of 15 to 20 miles, but these two guns have no hidden emplacements. They would have to depend on camouflage."

Beck and Rickenbacker agreed that the United States could make excellent defensive use of semi-rigid dirigibles.

FOR THOSE WHO SUFFER—The beginning of a humanitarian trans-Atlantic flight. Red Cross nurses in New York prepare 1,810 pounds of surgical dressings and medicants for loading aboard the Atlantic clipper to be flown to the French Red Cross for use in treating victims of the war. Included are 200 ampules of cerebral thorium dioxide for head injuries. The supplies were loaded in New York yesterday.

Nazi Fliers Blast Hospital Ship, Machine-Gun Fleeing Refugees

LONDON, May 22.—(P)—Crews of two British hospital ships and army medical corps personnel arrived at an English port tonight from a burning French seaport, where they survived bombing operations Tuesday.

The hospital ships were set afire along with the rest of the unidentified French town.

"We received warning of the air raid and were told to take wounded soldiers off our hospital ships," a surviving seaman said. "As we carried the men ashore on stretchers, the Nazi planes swooped down and gave us a withering hail of machine-gun fire."

"Women and children and Belgian refugees were mowed down as they waited in long queues to board cargo ships which were to take them out of the danger zone."

"The planes swooped low, just missing the roof tops. 'Dead women with children in their arms were lying on the quayside. We helped refugees with their few belongings to tramp to the outlying districts 14 miles away. Six hours later we returned and found the port ablaze.'"

PROVIDENCE, R. I., May 22.—(P)—A letter from an American girl ambulance driver in France brought from the war front today a tale of the machine-gunning of refugees.

The story was told by Elizabeth F. Adams, of Providence, in an air-mail letter to her parents.

"No one smiles," she wrote. "Life is just one long hell."

"It was terrible. I have been bombed—oh, God—if you knew how it felt to have a plane go over you like a dark, vicious shark and see it drop its bombs," she wrote.

Bombs dropped even as she penned the letter, she said, adding: "I know what it is like to be driving 20 people in a truck—see the planes—because when planes are coming, people's faces turn upward to look and the truck makes so much noise I can't hear them—so I watch the refugees' faces on the roadside. Anytime it is hell to get those 20 people out of the truck and into a ditch and lie down and wait. We are often machine-gunned, too. The planes come so close down. Damn them!"

"The Germans don't want them to get away safely. They machine-gun them in the roads, those poor, poor people, without homes—without food."

U. S. Consulate Hit By Nazi Bombers

ROTTERDAM, May 22.—(P)—The United States consulate building was destroyed during the German bombing of this seaport, now occupied by the Germans.

United States news correspondents on a tour of the Netherlands city were shown the ruins today.

F. D. R. Urges Aliens' Control By Justice Unit

Asks Congressional Action To Avert Danger of Spies.

WASHINGTON, May 22.—(P)—In a reorganization message marked "urgent," President Roosevelt sent to congress today a plan to shift the immigration and naturalization service from the Labor to the Justice Department, so that authorities may "deal quickly" with spies and saboteurs.

At the same time, Chairman Dies, Democrat, Texas, of the house committee on un-American activities, introduced a bill to bar all alien Nazis, Fascists and Communists from the country, and to deport any now here, along with aliens whom police certify to be revolutionary agitators.

The President said a review of the measures required for the nation's safety "has revealed a pressing need" for the transfer.

Calling Harry Bridges, west coast CIO leader, "one of the stationers in the herd of Trojan horses grazing in this country," Senator Reynolds, Democrat, North Carolina, introduced a bill by Representative Allen, Democrat, Louisiana, to deport him to Australia.

Allen sought rules committee sanction during the day for immediate house consideration of his measure, but the committee deferred action until Tuesday.

German Tank Troops Hard Hit by Airmen

Mighty R. A. F. Force Bludgeons Nazis' Advancing Columns.

By DREW MIDDLETON.

LONDON, May 22.—(P)—By sharp counterattacks on land and in the air the Allies tonight had stalled the German effort to complete a line from Abbeville to the English channel and thus to pen the British army in the narrow coastal plain.

While the infantry hit the Nazis hard at Arras, the Royal Air Force smashed at columns of mechanized troops.

Arras and Abbeville were retaken.

It was one of the most important features of a vast aerial operation of last night, in which one of the biggest R. A. F. raiding forces ever used in a single effort bludgeoned Germany's advancing columns and communication lines all the way from Rhenish Prussia to southern Belgium and western France.

Threefold Object.

The threefold object of the long-range attack was to:

(1) Destroy roads and bridges across the Meuse at Namur and Dinant;

(2) Derail trains on lines west of the Rhine, and

(3) Destroy or damage railway centers and junction yards west of the Ruhr.

Other bombers intercepted fast-moving columns of German light armored cars escorted by motorcycle troops on the main road north of Abbeville, attacking successfully.

One formation of 11 planes, the air ministry said, bombed a parked column of tanks and armored cars in a wood near Abbeville, dropping 150 bombs.

British planes lost or missing were reckoned at 13, in contrast to 24 German planes they said they shot down or seriously damaged.

Definite Plan.

The sudden counterattacks on Arras and Abbeville were regarded here as part of a general Allied plan. The first point of this plan, it was understood, was to relieve the terrible German pressure at the point of the German thrust towards the sea. The second, observers believed, was to press on a large scale from north and south against the base of the German salient, choking off troop supplies by aerial bombardment.

The Allied strategy is necessarily more limited than that of the Germans, whose plan, according to British officers, calls for light divisions to keep the British busy in the north while the German air force systematically bombs channel ports and depots. Then the main body of the German army would swing south to engage the French field armies, which are still virtually intact.

300,000 Men Allies Flying From Reserve U.S. Bombers Called by Carol

Most of Troops Sent to Rumania's Russian Frontier.

BUCHAREST, Rumania, May 22.—(P)—Rumania today called up 300,000 reservists and sent most of them to the Soviet frontier, in a virtual general mobilization which reflected fears that the Russian army might move soon on the Rumanian province of Bessarabia.

It was an action which brought this oil-rich kingdom's defenses to the highest state of preparedness.

Some observers said they saw in it an indication of deterioration of Russia's nine-month-old friendship with Germany. They insisted the Rumanian strengthening of the frontier was carried out with the approval, if not the counsel, of Germany.

Bessarabia was Russian before 1918.

King Carol followed up his call to the colors with a proclamation demanding that the nation "work strenuously and hold steadfastly to its patriotic duty."

He cancelled celebrations scheduled for June 8, commemorating the tenth anniversary of his enthronement, declaring the money would be better spent on guns to defend Rumania's frontiers.

Seven Dutch Liners Are Believed Sunk

NEW YORK, May 22.—(P)—Seven large passenger liners owned by the Holland-America Line probably have been sunk, severely damaged or confiscated by invading German troops now in possession of Rotterdam and Antwerp.

Officials of the line in New York said tonight that all efforts to communicate with the home office had failed. The ships involved represented 89,725 gross tons of shipping.

German accounts of sinking "troop ships" at Rotterdam and Antwerp tallied in some cases with the tonnage of the ships involved.

Airmen don't have an opportunity to separate troop ships from harmless vessels.

The line was without confirmation of a report that the 28,291-ton Statendam had burned at Rotterdam.

Nazis 'Not Interested' In East Indies, Report

TOKYO, May 22.—(P)—Germany today informed Japan she was "not interested" in the Netherlands East Indies. Interest in maintaining the status quo there has been expressed by Japan, the United States and Great Britain.

Details of Transport Not Revealed by Commission Member.

WASHINGTON, May 22.—(P)—The Allies disclosed today that they are flying some of their American-built bombing planes across the Atlantic.

Arthur B. Purvis, British head of the Allied purchasing mission, made the revelation to reporters after a conference with Treasury Secretary Morgenthau on Allied requests for assurances of prior delivery after this country's own plane purchasing program gets under way.

Purvis said a few of the larger bombing planes already purchased here had been flown across the ocean, and more would be sent that way as soon as they are built.

He declined to give exact figures on these flights, or other details. Officials assumed that the approximate route was the same as the north Atlantic commercial airplane route, an approximately 2,000-mile hop from Botwood, N. F., to Foynes, Ireland.

The flights cannot be made directly from the United States, because of the neutrality law. In practice, the planes are flown to the Canadian border, hauled across the line, flown again to a base and fueled for the 2,000 miles of Atlantic ocean between Newfoundland and Ireland.

Flights had been made so far, he said, only by heavy bombers. This indicated that the planes were two-motored Lockheed-Hudson and Martin bombers, of which the Allies have bought large quantities.

These ships were designed originally for the American army, which seeks ranges farther than 5,000 miles in some of its bomber types.

Byrnes Attacks Lindbergh for Defense Stand

had a "definite policy of defense already formulated" and had stated "time and again."

Takes Sharp Issue.
Byrnes, chairman of the senate naval appropriations subcommittee, took sharp issue with Lindbergh's statement that foreign air forces do not have bombing planes capable of crossing the ocean and returning and criticized the flyer's views on policy as well.

"When Mr. Lindbergh states that 'regardless of which side wins this war, there is no reason, aside from our own actions, to prevent a continuation of peaceful relationships between America and the countries of Europe,'" Byrnes said, "I shudder to think of the kind of America Mr. Lindbergh is willing to accept."

"Mr. Lindbergh seems not concerned with the flagrant violations of the rights of peaceful little nations, the cruel and bitter persecution of God-fearing men, women and children, because of their religion, race or political opinions; the burning of books, the bombing of helpless women and children fleeing in terror from their homes;

Baked Airplane Makes Its Debut

BURBANK, Cal., May 22.—(P)—An airplane baked in an oven made its first public appearance today.

Except for metal equipment, the ship is composed entirely of a new aircraft material obtained by saturating and binding thin strips of spruce with liquid bakings. The whole is then baked.

The new material is reported to be waterproof, oilproof, fireproof and 20 per cent lighter than present airplane materials.

The plane displayed today is a military type trainer. It has a wing span of 36 feet, weighs 1,435 pounds and carries 615 pounds. It has a maximum speed of 140 miles per hour.

the parachute spies and the torch troops. To Mr. Lindbergh all these seem to be only little trifling insignificant incidents to an age-old struggle for power.

Vile, Barbaric Deeds.
"But to me these vile, barbaric deeds represent an attack against everything that we hold dear, an attack against international good faith, against religion, against learning, against political freedom, against civilization itself."

"Mr. Lindbergh may tell us to 'stop this hysterical chatter of clamor and invasion,' but I thank God that America has at last been aroused to the dangers that beset her in a world menaced by brute force and strident ambition and is grimly determined to arm in self-defense."

Regarding the defense program, Byrnes said that Lindbergh "spoke as if the United States was somehow being rushed into an air defense program before a definite policy of defense had been formulated."

"He pointed out," Byrnes continued, "that an air defense program based on the defense of the United States alone would be quite different from a defense program based on the defense of the entire western hemisphere, and he proceeded to argue what no responsible person has ever denied, that America cannot effectively defend herself without defending the whole western hemisphere."

Stated Policy.
"But the President has stated that policy of hemisphere defense time and time again during the past two years. It is a definite policy of defense already formulated."

Byrnes referred sarcastically to "the once shy and reticent Mr. Lindbergh" and to "this hysterical protest against other people becoming hysterical about our national defense program."

He said that Lindbergh delivered his address in the exercise of freedom of speech "which totalitarian government is fast wiping out in Europe today" and characterized the flyer's advice as a recommendation for "the American people to continue to bury their heads in the sands."

Nazis Checked By Allies in Furious Drive

tries will be given absolute priority and labor will be drafted as required in the more essential industries.

Death Penalty Decreed.
The death penalty for "fifth column" treachery was provided in a bill also passed tonight by commons.

The measure provides that "if with intent to help the enemy, any person does or attempts or conspires with any other person to do any act which is designed or likely to give assistance to naval, military or air operations of the enemy, to impede such operations of His Majesty's forces, or to endanger life, he shall on conviction suffer death."

The minister for home security, Sir John Anderson, proposing the bill, said, "This is the moment, if ever there was one, for swift and drastic action. The grim realities of our present situation provide justification without any further argument."

Policy on 'Chutists.'
Attorney General Sir Donald Somervell said parachutists coming down in plain clothes as part of an attacking force would be dealt with "in the same way as people who attacked this country in uniform, with the added disadvantage of not having the privileges attaching in international law to uniformed soldiers."

Any enemy who came down in plain clothes, not as part of an attack and not armed, but simply hoping he might be able to commit espionage, would be dealt with under the new bill, the attorney general said.

Immediate Plans.
The first powers to be enacted under the sweeping enabling act, commons was told, would be:

1—Complete government control of persons and property, "not just some persons or some particular class, but all persons, rich or poor, men or women."

2—The minister of labor may "direct any person to perform any service required."

3—The minister of labor "will be able to prescribe terms of remuneration, hours of labor and conditions of service."

4—"There will be power to inspect premises and require employers to produce their books. The object is to mobilize the effective resources of the nation for whatever task may come upon us."

5—"Some establishments may be controlled altogether right away; others may be controlled later. They will in effect be working on government account with wages and profits under government control."

To Control Munitions.
6—"Munitions will be controlled immediately."

7—"Excess profits tax is at the rate of 100 per cent."

8—"Other establishments may be ordered to carry on" even at a loss, in which event "they must have adequate remuneration."

9—"There may be cases where firms will have to close down and there may perhaps be destruction of property here and there," with remuneration to be determined.

Churchill's power is greater than Cromwell's and hardly less absolute than Hitler's, except in the extent he is desirous of wielding supreme control over the individuals of the realm.

The powerful Amalgamated Engineers' Union swiftly agreed to temporary relaxation of its rules permit extended employment of women in the engineering industry.

Surge of Optimism.
A surge of optimism swept Britain and France at the day's news from the war front.

"Our troops are holding the Germans at all points," the French said. "Even the rumors are better today."

General Maxime Weygand, commander of the Allied forces, was described as "really satisfied."

The British, joining the French in detailing the Allies' good news, told of large-scale bombing attacks on the German main line of communications and military objectives in Germany itself.

Moreover, they said their own front had held firm all day, and that counterattacks had been delivered between Arras and Douai.

Up in Belgium, along the line of the Scheldt, the Belgians, also, counterattacks were reported.

French Failure Charged.
The Germans, however, declared the French failed in a counter-attack at Laon, 70 miles north of Paris, to relieve pressure of the drive against the French capital, and that 24 French tanks were captured and 10 burned.

Berlin also declared that the British counterattack between Arras and Douai failed.

German tanks were seen diving from roads in confusion to avoid clusters of bombs dropped by low-flying Royal Air Force planes behind the Nazi lines in northern France.

In Paris, a war ministry spokesman said there had been "hardly any change" along the front in the last 48 hours and that the Allies' commander in chief was "really satisfied."

A British military spokesman declared swift Allied counter-attacks by land and air against mechanized Nazis around Abbeville had averted the immediate danger of a German corridor to the channel.

He said the Allied position shows a "slight improvement" for the first time in five dark days.

Await Counterattack.
In admitting that the Nazi blitzkrieg may have been halted, at least temporarily, General Von Reichenau said the main German army in northern France awaited the impact of a rallying counter-attack by the Allies' new generalissimo, 73-year-old Maxime Weygand.

"Weygand has ordered every man to stand his ground," the German commander said. "That may mean hard fights ahead."

Weygand's own optimism over the Allied cause was repeated every hour in broadcasts to the French nation:

"I am full of confidence—if each man does his duty with a fierce energy," he said.

In London the air ministry added another note of buoyancy, reporting that the German advance often presented a picture of "utter chaos" as seen by R. A. F. reconnaissance planes flying over the channel area.

British naval quarters reported the German attempt to strangle Britain's sea communications had been checked.

"Utter Chaos" Related.
"From the air, the head of the German advance presented at times a picture of utter chaos," said the air ministry.

"Often, bombing was impossible because of the difficulty of identifying enemy columns among streams of refugees overtaken by the enemy's rapid advance."

"A convoy of armored (German) motor lorries three miles long was bombed by two low-flying Blenheims, and fires were started to break out among the vehicles immediately after the attack."

"Another column of armed vehicles partially hidden in a wood near Abbeville was heavily bombed by a formation of 11 Blenheims. More than 150 bombs were dropped and salvos were seen to fall close to each side of the column on the road and in the wood."

Other British bombers scored direct hits on bridges, railway junctions and rolling stock in Rheinisch Prussia, striving to disrupt German communications and supplies.

Sabotage Danger Probed By Boulder Dam Aides
WASHINGTON, May 22.—(UP)—Officials at Boulder Dam—largest power plant in the world—are questioning dam employees closely to determine if there is any danger of sabotage by workers, it was said officially here tonight.

A Reclamation Bureau official revealed that questionnaires customarily circulated among employees to learn their past records, have been broadened to determine the employees' whereabouts during the first World War.

Four More Americans In 'Mercy Unit' Missing
PARIS, May 22.—(P)—Four young Americans were added today to the list of the missing from Anne Morgan's ambulance unit, operating in the northern war zone, and officials expressed belief that five others previously not accounted for were dead or German prisoners. The latest to drop from sight were last seen driving casualty-laden ambulances south of a town now in German hands.

Briton Would Trade U.S. Islands for Planes, Pilots
LONDON, May 22.—(P)—Sir George Paish, economic adviser to the chancellor of the exchequer in the last war, suggested today that Great Britain trade part of the West Indies for United States airplanes and pilots. He addressed the Sound Currency Association.

Record Army Fund Passes Senate 74 to 0

approved and sent to the upper chamber the navy supply bill within an hour after it received the measure from its subcommittee.

This bill includes $250,000,000 cash to build up the navy air force and hasten construction of warships already authorized, a $100,000,000 contract authorization for the navy air corps, and a $68,000,000 "blank check" fund to Mr. Roosevelt. The committee went further and approved a $54,776,000 item to increase the enlisted strength of the navy from 145,000 to 170,000 and the Marine Corps from 25,000 to 34,000.

Other major defense developments today:

1. The house naval affairs committee unanimously reported a

$144,132,000 naval aviation expansion bill which authorizes a naval force of 10,000 planes, training of 16,000 pilots and development of a score of bases in continental United States, the Canal Zone and insular possessions.

Chairman Carl Vinson said the measure would go before the house Friday. The committee agreed to Vinson's proposal authorizing the secretary of the navy to spend $10,000,000 for establishing auxiliary air bases in strategic areas and to permit expenditure of a like sum for acquisition of naval reserve air bases.

2. The house agreed to take up three defense measures any time after they are reported. In addition to the naval aviation expansion legislation, they are the bill to relax certain rigid labor restrictions on shipbuilding and naval armament and to lift limitations on the number of planes the army may acquire.

3.—Vinson revealed that "just as soon" as Mr. Roosevelt signs authorizing legislation, including the aviation bill, the President will ask an additional $100,000,000 to carry out the aviation program and another $50,000,000 to expedite shipbuilding and start construction under the 11 per cent navy expansion bill now pending in the senate. Vinson said the immediate goal of the navy is to be invincible in the air and on and beneath the sea.

4.—Stressing the urgency of building a minimum of 10,000 naval planes—a major step in Mr. Roosevelt's proposed 50,000 warplane program—Admiral Harold R. Stark told the house naval affairs committee that types of planes he wants are military secrets. The chief of naval operations also said the navy has some secret air base projects.

5.—Rear Admiral John T. Towers, chief of the naval bureau of aeronautics, told the same committee that United States ownership of Bermuda, the Bahamas and the British West Indies would be of great military value for air bases. His statement was in reply to a question by Representative James W. Mott, Republican, Oregon, who explained he was not asking the admiral to speak on matters of policy.

Georgians Ready To Do Their Bit

As Uncle Sam, alive to dangers against which oceans are no longer an effective wall, moves swiftly to strengthen his military arms, these members of the senior class at the United States Naval Academy are ready to do their bit toward making America's navy smoothly efficient and impregnable. They're all from the Empire State of the South—Georgia. Graduation exercises for the 456-man class will be held June 6 in Thompson Stadium at Annapolis, Maryland, an aerial view of which appears at left above. At right above is the historic and imposing statue of the figurehead of that great aborigine, Tecumseh—a replica of the figurehead of the U. S. S. Delaware. The midshipmen are now taking final examinations. Senior classmen will not know until early next month whether they are successful in their quest for diplomas and commissions. Portraits of the Georgia middies are copyrighted by Harris & Ewing; the other two photos are by the Associated Press.

GHOST OF YESTERYEAR A fearful specter from the past stalks in the memories of the people of Ypres, Belgium, as total war rages unabated in their homeland again. Will their rebuilt city soon look as it did above, gaunt and shattered, after the first World War had brought death and destruction to it?

GRIM THE TREAD of Rumanian legions marching by a statue of Carol I, father of today's King. Fearful of war, Bucharest has ordered virtual general mobilization. (Story on Page 12)

MECHANIZED MATCH for the Nazis? That question may soon find an answer if another break in the dikes cooping the European war permits it to flood over Rumania. Rumanian tanks and troops such as these would then have a chance to show their skill at wheeled and armored warfare.

Civitan Clubs To Open State Meeting Today

J. L. Brakefield, International President, Will Speak Tomorrow.

J. L. Brakefield, of Birmingham, international president of the Civitans, will address the Georgia district convention which begins this afternoon at the Baltimore hotel.

Brakefield will address the closing banquet tomorrow night.

The convention will open with registration and committee meetings this afternoon. Tomorrow morning's session includes welcoming addresses by the mayor and the Governor, and a talk by Dean Raimondo de Oryes, of the Cathedral of St. Philip.

A buffet luncheon will be served on the hotel terrace with Hamilton Douglas as the main speaker. The afternoon will be devoted to business and a talk by International Secretary Arthur Cundy, of Birmingham. A full entertainment program has been arranged for wives of members attending.

James N. Keelin is Civitan district governor, and Leslie Hubbard general convention chairman.

First Peaches Shipped From Fort Valley Area

FORT VALLEY, Ga., May 22.—(P)—A half bushel of Mountain Rose peaches, first of the 1940 crop, was shipped yesterday from the Mossy Hill farm of W. H. Felton, of Macon.

Felton said he expected to ship between 300 and 400 bushels before the end of the week.

CANDIDATE—Charles L. Chosewood, who has represented the present first ward as a member of city council longer than any other man in history of the municipality, yesterday announced to succeed himself in the September 4 city primary.

C.L. Chosewood Seeks Return To City Council

He Began Service in '05; Has Worked With Nine Mayors.

Charles L. Chosewood, retired business man and oldest member of city council in point of first service, yesterday announced to succeed himself as first-ward councilman, subject to the primary September 4.

Elected to city council in 1904, Chosewood first began his service in 1905, and has held practically every important committee assignment in the gift of nine mayors. He began his political career under the late Mayor James G. Woodward, and served under Mayors Robert C. Maddox, Courtland S. Winn, William R. Joyner, Asa G. Candler, James L. Key, Walter A. Sims, J. A. Ragsdale and William B. Hartsfield.

Holds Record. No other member of council in the memory of local political observers ever held office under that number of administrations. He has been a city official for a generation.

Known for his punctuality, Chosewood seldom misses a meeting of any committee of which he is a member or a meeting of council.

He is regarded as a member of the councilmanic group which insists on a business-like administration of city affairs, always demanding that the municipality maintain a balance between its income and expenditures.

Two Chairmanships. As chairman of the water and prison committees, he is one of the few members of the general council holding two chairmanships. He also is vice chairman of the important public works committee, and holds appointments on several other committees.

"I have always believed it incumbent on members of the city's governing body to conduct municipal affairs just as one would run his own personal business," Chosewood said. "That has been one of my guide posts during all the years I have served. I submit my candidacy to the people of Atlanta on my record of faithful, honest, conscientious and equitable service. I promise that my every act will be conscientiously in what I believe to be the best interests of Atlanta citizens and taxpayers."

Donkey Tag Drive Progress Reported

Enthusiastic letters and telegrams from county chairmen over the state to the Democratic Donkey Tag Drive headquarters indicate the success of the sale of tags, according to Mrs. R. L. Turman, chairman of the women's division of the Democratic party in Georgia.

Letters have come from Mrs. D. W. Minchow, of St. Simons Island; Mrs. Phil Pringle, of Brunswick; Mrs. Edith L. Dimmock, of Waycross; Mrs. J. C. Collier, of Barnesville; Mrs. Chester Ryals, of McRae, and Mrs. Ruth Murray, of Marietta.

Child Topples 30 Feet; Is Not Even Scratched

CHICAGO, May 22.—(P)—"Guess what—Betty fell." Thus did 3-year-old Peggy Campbell calmly inform her mother that another daughter, Betty, 7, had tumbled 30 feet to the ground from a third floor window in their home.

Peggy was right — Betty had fallen, but physicians were unable to find even a scratch.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—

Without Calomel—And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning

The liver should pour out two pints of liquid bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food may not digest. It may just decay in the bowels. Gas builds up your stomach. You get constipated. You feel sour, sick and the world looks pink.

It takes these good, old Carter's Little Liver Pills to get these two pints of bile flowing freely to make you feel "up and up." Amazing in making bile flow freely. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills by name. 10¢ and 25¢. Stubbornly refuse anything else.

Population Grows In the Canal Zone

WASHINGTON, May 22.—(P)—The Census Bureau completed today the census of the Panama Canal Zone and found a population of 51,830—a 31.3 per cent gain in the last 10 years.

The zone was the first large geographical area to complete its census. Its population, which includes large numbers of army and navy personnel, consists of 31,503 in the Balboa district, and 20,327 in Cristobal.

DeKalb Red Cross Girds To Raise $3,000 Quota

Forces of the DeKalb county chapter of the Red Cross united yesterday under the co-chairmanship of Dr. J. Sam Guy and S. G. Stukes to raise its quota of $3,000 toward the national war relief goal of $10,000,000.

J. T. McMullen, executive director of the DeKalb chapter, said yesterday he was pleased with the local interest in the drive and urged that contributions be made as soon as possible.

Whelchel Opposed By Solicitor Kelley

SPECIAL TO THE CONSTITUTION. GAINESVILLE, Ga., May 22.—Colonel G. Fred Kelley, solicitor general of the Northeastern circuit of superior courts and prominent Gainesville leader, yesterday morning qualified as a candidate for representative in congress from the ninth district by paying his qualification fee to T. J. Syfan, secretary of the ninth district Democratic executive committee, in Commerce.

Kelley's qualification means a three-cornered race, since the incumbent, B. Frank Whelchel, of Gainesville, recently qualified, as did Dr. John S. Golden, Jasper

$2,500,000 For Battle Hill, Grady Asked

Trustees Want Sum If Any Bond Issue Goes to Voters.

Addition of $2,500,000 for reconstructing, modernizing and fireproofing Grady hospital and Battle Hill tuberculosis sanatorium to any request for bonds for other purposes in the city was asked yesterday by unanimous vote of the Grady hospital board of trustees.

Meeting at Grady and holding an adjourned session at Battle Hill, the trustees adopted a resolution asking that $2,000,000 be made available for Grady and another $500,000 for Battle Hill "when, if and as" any bond issue is submitted to the voters.

They stressed that, while Grady buildings have been much improved through co-operation of federal agencies, the buildings remain firetraps and should be replaced, and that all the present buildings at Battle Hill are frame structures.

Members of the Atlanta Pilot Club presented the trustees a check for $1,400 raised by the club for equipping a new surgical ward at Battle Hill.

Early filing of perfected plans for a $75,000 service unit at Battle Hill was predicted as a result of studies made by board members. The project, which already has the tacit approval of local WPA executives, has been under consideration for the past several months.

Mayor Hartsfield believes the project will be completed this year. It will provide kitchen, laundry and other service facilities needed at the institution.

Gold Ore Found In North Fulton Assays $43.40

Geologist Reports Vein Eight Inches Wide, Visible for 20 Feet.

Samples of gold ore taken from a recently discovered vein in north Fulton county, just off Northside drive and about two miles beyond Pace's Ferry road, have been assayed at $43.40 per ton, state geologists said yesterday.

Discovery of gold was reported to geologists several weeks ago, but the first samples were assayed at only $26.75 per ton.

Dr. A. S. Furcron, assistant state geologist, said he had inspected the vein and reported it was approximately eight inches wide. It is visible vertically for about 20 feet, he said.

Dr. Furcron said he was pleased with the results and added the gold ore was better than anything he had expected to find outside of the gold belt.

The binder rock on each side of the vein also contains gold, the geologist reported. He took samples from this rock as far as 17 inches away from the vein. These were assayed at $3.50 per ton.

"All that I have found is favorable," Dr. Furcron said. "However, I could not recommend mining just now. There should be further prospecting to see if the vein extends farther down and holds its value. After that is done we will know whether to recommend mining or not."

He explained the vein might get narrower as it extended downward, and in such a case its value would be reduced.

Hitchhiker Found Guilty of Murder

Ray Holland, 30, a Michigan hitchhiker, yesterday was found guilty of the murder of Lonnie Smith, Stone Mountain youth, by a Fulton superior court jury which recommended mercy.

Judge Hugh M. Dorsey will pronounce the sentence of life imprisonment this morning.

Smith was found dead March 5 near Crestlawn cemetery. Holland, intoxicated, was picked up by police walking along the highway not far away. A pistol in his possession was said to have been the one which killed Smith, and he identified as his own a small bag found near Smith's body. His first trial ended in a mistrial.

Dawn Patrol Plans Series of Flights

The Dawn Patrol, recently organized flying club with headquarters at Candler field, plans to follow up its first cross-country tour with Sunday morning hops throughout the summer, according to L. P. Amick, president.

The organization, semi-social in nature, is part of a nation-wide network of patrols which make periodic cross-country visits with each other.

Shriners' Ceremonial Marks Initiation of 60

AUGUSTA, Ga., May 22.—(AP)—Several hundred Shriners of Alee temple were in Augusta today for the grand spring ceremonial and to witness the initiation of some 60 neophytes from Augusta and this section.

Wilkes S. MacFeely, illustrious potentate of Alee temple, and about 300 followers, came from Savannah. Accompanying the Savannah delegation were the Alee temple band, the drill team, and an orchestra to play for the potentates' ball tonight.

Showers Possible. Forecaster Admits

There is a faint chance of thundershowers slaking the thirst of the dry, dusty north Georgia earth today.

"It's missing a good chance if it doesn't rain," said Meteorologist

George W. Mindling yesterday, in the cryptic vein of the Cumaean Sybil.

"And if it does rain, I'm afraid it won't be enough to do anybody much good," he gloomed, reminding Atlantans that his weekly summary of crop and weather conditions, found elsewhere in this paper, reports the beginning of a serious drought in Georgia. Yesterday's high and low readings were 86 and 66 degrees. Today's high is expected to be another 86.

NEW TRAFFIC OFFICER. SPARTA, Ga., May 22.—(AP)—Raley Jones, former traffic safety director for the Augusta police department, has been appointed traffic officer here.

REA Group To Extend North Georgia Lines

SPECIAL TO THE CONSTITUTION. DALTON, Ga., May 22.—An additional 20 miles of electric lines, to cost approximately $20,000, will be constructed in the near future in Whitfield, Gordon and Chattooga counties by the North Georgia Electric Membership Corporation, it was announced today by William L. Manton, superintendent. Ten miles of lines will be constructed in the Mill Creek section of Whitfield county.

In addition, the co-operative will begin work immediately on a new substation to be located near Dalton, which will cost approximately $22,000 and which, when completed, will distribute TVA power to lines in this section. Plans call for completion of the substation by the first of July and for the completion of new lines by the first of August.

PASTOR IS CALLED. ACWORTH, Ga., May 22.—Members of Acworth Christian church have issued a call to the Rev. Columbus Stone, of Ranger, to serve as its pastor.

PREPARE FOR RECRUITS. FORT BENNING, Ga., May 22.—(AP)—Army workers in the recruiting center are preparing for a large number of new men, expected here under the unlimited recruiting order issued from the fourth corps headquarters. The job includes clothing and equipment for the recruits.

Talk Hubby Into Buying The Right Clothes

By Yolande Gwin.

If you want to keep him faithful forever, never let him think that he shouldn't have as many clothes as you do. (This of course may be accomplished very easily, for remember he is not the United States customs officer and you do not have to declare everything.)

One of the best methods to make him clothes conscious is to curl up kittenlike on his favorite divan, have a downcast look and tell him you have done very wrong, have been very bad and have a confession to make.

A statement like this will pique the interest of the best of husbands, and it will give you an open sesame along the true confessions line. Then you can tell him of your downfall.

"Darling, you know if you wanted that washable summer suit very bad, I would do anything to get it for you. And if you wanted those slacks, and that new bathing suit and one of those fascinating nautical straw hats, you know you could have them, don't you? And I would be so thrilled for you to have everything you wanted that no matter what happened I would not be mad. You do know that, don't you?"

He will be agreeing with you by this time and then you can launch into a talk on clothes for him. Tell him that brown shoes may be worn with a gray suit and that mixed suits are tops for now, that the new straws give men that mysterious Far East look and a Marco Polo dash. Tell him that when he buys a suit, be sure the fit is easy, for that's the important item in a summer suit. Just keep on telling him all about himself and his clothes.

When he suddenly remembers—if he does—that you had something to tell him, be vague and innocent about the whole thing, and say:

"Why, my wonderful one, you know I haven't done anything wrong! I can't imagine what I was going to tell you, for I haven't done a thing today. I just went to town and bought those slacks I have been wanting so long. But I didn't think that was bad, was it? And, you don't care do you, dear?"

Young and Pert

By Lillian Mae.

The quickest way to your best friend's heart is to look disarmingly demure—in this new Lillian Mae frock, Pattern 4469! That wide, squared neckline has quaint mid-Victorian charm, nicely accented by wide self-ruffling or by a ruff of frosty white. Have ruffles on the sleeves too, and you might add gay rick-rack edging and pert little bows. Another attractive version shows the neckline with simple edging and a bow at either side. The appealingly soft lines of the frock are held smoothly by waist darts. A sash from the sides may tie in back, and tiny buttons may be marched down the center. Do get busy on this lovely frock right away!

Pattern 4469 is available in junior miss sizes 11, 12, 13, 14, 15, 16 and 17. Size 13 takes four yards, 39-inch fabric and 4 1/2 yards rick-rack.

Send 15 cents in coins for this Lillian Mae pattern. Do not send stamps. Write plainly size, name, address and pattern number.

Order the new Lillian Mae Pattern Book by the next mail... and be clothes-ready for summer! Within its pages you will find a complete wardrobe for either a travelling or an "at home" summer. There are town and country tailored, the latest sportswear, airy sheers and cottons, enchanting evening gowns. Fashions for every age are shown, from magically slimming matron frocks to spirited clothes for tots—and each in an easy-to-use pattern. Book 15 cents.

Send your order to Lillian Mae Pattern Department, The Constitution, Atlanta, Ga.

Clad in an attractive cotton playsuit, Ann Sheridan makes a pretty picture sitting on the lawn taking a sun bath. Note the white trim at the top of the suit and the pert ric-rac accent around the bottom of the skirt. This shapely young "oomph girl" is currently starring in the Warner Brothers' production, "It All Came True."

Use Money as Medium To Teach Young People Important Lessons of Life

By Caroline Chatfield.

The lad was cutting the family lawn. The grass was long. His face was wet with honest sweat. He was having a poor time. A young neighbor passed by and yelled to him: "Work hard; save your money and you'll get ahead in life!" to which good advice and the grass cutter snarled, "Shut your mouth."

Of course gratuitous advice never goes over big with young or old, but the youngster who passed out that bit was telling what sort of training he was getting at home. He had been preached to and he was spreading his gospel: a 3-point gospel every child should learn in his parents' home: namely, hard work produces money, we must save it if we are to have it, the little surplus put aside is the first step toward going somewhere in life.

A wise friend of mine (he isn't a materialist either) often says that money is a fine medium with which to teach a child most of the important lessons of life and that the success which has come to his children is a result of their having learned the mechanics of money and a sane philosophy of money when they were young.

"By precept and example we tried to teach our children that since money entered into most of the transactions in our daily lives we had to have money and it didn't grow on trees. We tried to teach them by personal experience with handling of small sums that what they couldn't pay for, they had to do without and if they spent their money foolishly for things they didn't need, they were sure to meet privation around the corner. Also that borrowing against the future was costly since it involved repayment with interest.

"We never lost opportunity to drive home the point that anyone who has no more than enough for the bare necessities of life is a puppet of fate with no independence, and anybody who used all he had for selfish pleasure and failed to share with those less fortunate was friendless and would wind up as a miser despised by his fellow men.

"I contend that when a youngster understands he must make his money by hard work, use judgment in spending it, be thrifty in saving it, be generous in sharing it and be honest in all financial transactions, he has a pretty good grounding in basic morality."

Bob Preston Dies in Four Out of Every Five Pictures

By Sheila Graham.

HOLLYWOOD, May 22.—Robert Preston is holding forth on the "Northwest Mounted Police" set, discussing the interesting subject of sarongs. "I wore a three-cent sarong in 'Typhoon,'" he tells me. "Dotty's (Lamour) cost 12 1/2 cents. I haven't seen the picture yet," he adds. "I'm too bashful!" Next picture for the couple is "Moon Over Burma," but, strangely enough, according to Preston, "It is sarongless. We're both from Brooklyn, and they don't wear sarongs in Brooklyn." Preston dies in that one—"An elephant kills me." He dies in "Northwest Mounted." He died in "Union Pacific" and "Beau Geste." This gives him a death score of four out of every five pictures. He's a nice boy. I'd like to see him move often.

Robert Taylor and his mustache is a story in three parts as told by Bob on the "Escape" set at Met. "As you see," says Robert, giving his mustache a slight tug, "the hair is not my own. Go on, pull." I pull—a bit too hard. A scream of pain from the actor. A re-sticking of the mustache and he continues, "As you know, I wore a phony mustache in 'Waterloo Bridge.' My wife liked it so much that to please her I grew a real one—when the picture was finished, of course. And, if I do say so myself, it was a handsome thing."

"I was all set to go into this picture with my mustache," continues Bob, "when I had to do some retakes of 'Waterloo Bridge'—the part where I was a middle-aged, graying gentleman. My own mustache didn't quite match up with what I had worn in the picture. And we found it impossible to paste the gray mustache over my own. Hair will stick on skin, but not on hair. So I had to shave it off. Barbara cried when I came home without it. There was no time to grow another for this picture. But when it's over—I gather that when 'Escape' is over, nothing can come between Bob and his own mustache."

Playing Taylor's mother in the picture is Alla Nazimova, who was a star on the stage and in pictures when Bob was in short pants. She is currently residing at the Garden of Allah hotel—and thereby hangs a tale. When Nazimova was a star of silent pictures, she lived where she lives now. Only then, she owned the entire estate, to which she gave her name. Now she inhabits only of its rooms.

Fredric March is about to save Betty Field from a fate worse than death on the "Victory" set at Paramount. Betty is a member of a 1903 girls' orchestra in the Dutch East Indies. She and her troupe are under the conductorship of Fritz Feld, who is about to sell his charges to the highest bidder. Feld hides his villainy "neath a hideous smile and an even worse-looking beard." "You look like a goat," I tell him. "I feel like one," he replies, and adds, "I'm a very friendly man, but I wish you had been here a few minutes ago and seen me conducting the orchestra. I can't read a note of music!"

Betty Field is gotten up in a terrible trail of white number with a Scotch plaid across the front. I am assured that Betty is a member of this sort of thing in 1903. But I still don't believe it. Betty tells me that she met Mr. March for the first time two years ago in New York, when both appeared on the same radio program. He stared at her, then said, "Hello," he said. "Hello," she said. "I know you," he said. "Oh, do you?" she said. "You're Janet Gaynor's stand-in," he said. "No," she said emphatically.

The next meeting for the two was on the "Victory" set. March and Director John Cromwell reminisce about the first picture both of them made in Hollywood—"The Dummy," in 1929. "Which one was the dummy?" Betty inquires sweetly, looking at Freddie.

Woman's Quiz

Q. Which mineral elements and vitamins are in cows' milk?
A. Calcium, magnesium, potassium, sodium, phosphorus, chlorine, sulphur, and iron. Vitamin content of milk is important, as A, B and C are found in amounts varying somewhat with the food of the cow.

Q. What place should nuts have in the diet?

A. Nuts in general, being rich in both protein and fat, are comparable with meats as a food and may be used interchangeably with meat in the diet. Nuts may be served in bread, salads and desserts in meatless dinners.

Q. How may I clean an enamel cooking utensil in which food was burned?

A. Soak the food loose with water, or by boiling a weak soda solution in it. A Feldspar abrasive may be used lightly, but enamelware should not be scraped with sharp-edged instruments or coarse abrasives.

Q. If the smell of rubbing alcohol is objectionable, what substitute may be used for rubbing bed-ridden patients?

A. You can use witch-hazel or dilute 180-proof grain alcohol with half water and add a few drops of oil of geranium for perfume.

Q. Is it possible to can fruit with boiling water instead of A. Yes; fruits canned this way may be used just like fresh fruit.

Easy To Make Your Letters An Asset

The people we want most to please are always the people with the highest standards—isn't it so? Then what a pity to risk sending them crudely-written notes, excusing yourself with "I'm just not a letter-writer."

For you can easily write letters that make a good impression when you have pointers on English, correct form, vocabulary.

See what a transformation a little knowledge can work even in this brief social note: "Am pleased Monday, May 27, 2 p. m."

Smoothly you rephrase, avoiding such English mistakes as omitting the "I" using "except" for "accept." And in social notes you always write out dates and numerals.

Now your note is above criticism: "I am very pleased to accept your invitation for Monday, May twenty-seventh, at two o'clock."

Then, to make all your letters interesting, brush up on vocabulary. Instead of a bare "I have a lily pool now," write "This morning I've been in the garden, turning a dilapidated tub into the loveliest lily pool in the world."

And what a me-to-you warmth you give your letters, if you seem to share your experiences with your correspondent. Instead of a self-centered "I find it pleasant here," write "I wish you were sitting on the porch with me, listening to the wind in the treetops."

Popcorn Square

By Alice Brooks.

Every housewife visualizes her home enriched by the accessories that make it distinctive. The wise new woman knows that her crocheted hook and mercerized cotton can give her these at little cost. This lovely spread can be made bit by bit—a square at a time. Before you know it, you'll have enough to cover your bed! The square is excellent pick-up work for those odd moments that would otherwise be frittered away. Pattern 6599 contains instructions for making square; illustrations of it and stitches; materials; photograph of square.

To obtain this pattern send 10 cents in coin to Household Arts Dept., The Constitution, Atlanta, Ga. Be sure to write plainly your name, address and pattern number.

POINTS FOR PARENTS

By Edyth Thomas Wallace.

Father: "My salary has been cut. If you all help me, I'm sure we can figure out ways to decrease our living expenses."

Son: "Sure we can, dad."

Father: "You're such an extravagant family. I don't see how I'll ever manage with my smaller salary."

Daughter: "I don't know of anything I can give up."

Whether children consider difficulties a challenge to straight thinking, or a cause for bemoaning, depends largely upon their parents' attitude.

Girl Without a Girdle Must Have Firm Figure

By Ida Jean Kain.

A little informal research reveals that Juno was jealous of Venus' figure and that she borrowed the other divinity's girdle—so the story goes—to keep Jupiter at home where he belonged. The report that the muse worked goes to show what a good girdle can do for a girl! But in those early days corsets must have been SOMETHING and we swelter to think of Juno's disposition if she wore it straight through the summer! Even today, with the girdle a featherweight affair, a girl likes her freedom.

One far-sighted reader with a vivid memory has already requested a figure program that will permit her to discard her girdle, except for state occasions, during the warm spell! If you will start with her, you can look forward to a very comfortable summer. What your figure needs is a good foundation of its own. And what that takes is a program of exercise that will slim the waist, flatten the mid-section, firm the derriere.

Rolling, fore and aft, is one of the best of the firming muscles. Here is a good sample:

Position: Lie face downward on the floor, arms and legs at full extension and held slightly off the floor.

Movement: Roll from side to side, across the stomach and over to one side, then back across to the other. Keep it up for 20 counts. Then relax completely for a couple of minutes.

Now, over on the back:

Position: Assume a semi-reclining position with the arms flexed and weight resting on hands and forearms which are down at the sides. Have legs straight down.

Movement: Roll from one side-thighline over to the other, rolling away over on the side of the thigh to iron out the fat pads, and back and forth across the derriere.

These two rolling exercises will diminish your fore-and-aft figure problems. The waistline is next.

Position: Still on the back on the floor, stretch the arms out from the shoulders at either side, and bring the legs straight up to form a right angle with the trunk.

Movement: Holding the legs together, drop them over to the right on the floor. Return to the right-angle position, and drop to floor on left. Continue for 10 counts. This exercise is somewhat strenuous, but it can be increased gradually.

Here's a Tip On Feminine Hygiene

By Dr. William Brady.

If I had his picture of course that would convince everybody that I actually interviewed the visitor from Mars shortly before he took off on his return journey to the home planet. Unfortunately I was so intent on getting his views on divers problems that I neglected to ask for his picture. But no matter. Our artist can make a line drawing which will do as well—anything that will fit his imagination, or mine or yours and the space available.

This may seem farfetched at first, but constant repetition will unquestionably establish it in the minds of a good many people as an accepted fact. Remember how seriously a portion of the population took the first rumor of the arrival of the man from Mars.

These comments are inspired by an item sent by a reader. The reader asks why I do not advise women about feminine hygiene. The item contains as the center of interest a line drawing of a dame, or maybe a damsel, in her bath, and the legend around the picture appraises the glib sex that "this fastidious woman deems it necessary to be as clean inside as out."

Now the man in the moon—I mean the man from Mars—had no ulterior purpose in giving the interview. He merely found the denizens of earth pedomorphic and wished to observe their reaction to the bogyman.

But this Tess o' the 'Tub who wants to make Dumb Dora think it is fastidious and essential to "be as clean inside as out" intends to sell Dora a gold brick, and by gosh, unless Dora buys the brick the fastidious one will discontinue teaching feminine hygiene.

Come to think of it—or rather, in point of fact I do advise women about hygiene. In the first place hygiene has no gender. You may be reasonably certain that anything purporting to be "feminine hygiene" is not essential for health or does not prevent disease. Certainly there is no sense in the gratuitous suggestion that "inside" washing, bathing, douching or other "refreshing, cleansing and odorizing" is necessary or advisable for perfect health.

In several monographs I have for women advise about douching and other questions of concern to a woman's health. Any one of these will be mailed on request if you enclose a stamped envelope bearing your address. For more than one, enclose 10 cents coin for each three. One is about Menstruation. One is about Tumors and Displacement. One is about Leucorrhea. One is about Menopause. Moreover I am always glad to answer any question a feminine correspondent cares to ask, confidentially and frankly—provided she encloses a stamped (3-cent) envelope bearing her address. Of course I am concerned only about physiology, hygiene, psychology, health and happiness—do not ask me for economic, ethical, moral, religious or legal information or advice.

It would be much better for the health and happiness of girls and women if they were not so glibly as to the way the snobs live.

MY DAY: War's Sufferings Teach a Lesson

By Eleanor Roosevelt.

WASHINGTON.—There is a paragraph at the end of a column by Regine Kurlander in one of our newspapers which I think is well worth commenting on today. It reads: "Our security is not a matter of weapons alone. I know that to cope with present dangers we must be strong in heart and hand, strong in our faith, strong in our way of living."

What is our way of living? How does it differ from that of the two allied dictator nations in Europe today? The difference seems to be that in these two countries the rulers tell their people what they are to do, whereas in other countries people themselves have to decide what they are willing to do.

Herein lies the challenge to democracy. These rulers, in both cases, started their programs by explaining to their people that they wished to make life better for them. Even a few years ago people going to Germany were carefully shown that there were no slums, that the government was making every effort to make life more worth while for everyone. The objectives were hidden. After the good things were firmly established in the minds of both Germans and Russians, the idea of power and ability to dominate the world was equally carefully instilled.

We, in this country, had best learn a lesson from them. Every individual in this country must be convinced that the government is as much interested today in seeing them well housed, well clothed and well fed, obtaining needed medical care and recreation, as they are concerned that arms are necessary for defense in the world as it is today. Unless the two convictions go hand in hand, somewhere the unity of the nation will break.

Those watching the drama in Europe today are sick at heart at the suffering of individual human beings. Last night I saw the pictures of destruction in Belgium and the faces of the people. That might be your little sister with her head done up in bandages. Wake up, every one of you, to the two fronts on which our defense must be built!

A group of people interested in housing came to see me this morning to talk about housing bill S 591. They made the point that, unless housing went on in this country at an accelerated pace, we would be paying more year by year in every community for the evils that come from bad housing and that we would build a better defense and healthier young people through giving them decent places in which to live. I am in entire accord with their stand and I only hope that women all over this country are going to take up the crusade for better housing. They should write to their representatives and say that they would rather pay for preventing crime and disease through better housing and that they have a personal interest in improving the homes of the nation, both from the economic and moral standpoint.

Rhododendron Club Marks Twenty-First Birthday Today

• • • TWENTY-ONE YEARS AGO 20 young women answered the call of Miss Annie Mae Broach to assemble at her Highland avenue residence to organize a club, and the Rhododendron Club came into existence out of that summons. From 6 to 10 o'clock this evening members of the organization will celebrate the birthday anniversary at a party taking place in the beautiful formal garden of Mrs. E. R. Partridge on Oakdale road. Mesdames Gordon Kenimer, W. R. Woodall and Edward Miller are to be cohostesses.

It was the idea and ideal of Miss Broach, founder of the club, to have members work for the education of mountain girls. For that reason, the club bears the name of the flower that is so suggestive of, and grows to perfection, in the mountains of north Georgia. Although only 20 members were listed on the roster 21 years ago, five more members have been admitted to the membership since that time. Miss Lillian Daley was the first president, and names of other leaders follow here below in successive terms: Miss Eliza Bridwell, Miss Annie Mae Broach, Miss Dorothy Martin, Mrs. W. Beverly Johnson and Mrs. Edgar N. Good.

The Rhododendron Club has become an important factor in educating students at Tallulah Falls school. A $2,000 perpetual scholarship has been paid up and another $2,000 perpetual scholarship has been started by members at the school, which is owned and operated by Georgia Federation of Women's Clubs.

Officers are Mesdames Edgar N. Good, president; E. R. Partridge, vice president; W. L. Quillian, second vice president; B. V. Stodghill, treasurer, and Edmund Mager, recording secretary. Miss Annie Mae Broach and Mrs. T. H. Grant are the only charter members belonging to the Rhododendron Club.

• • • SIGNAL HONOR has been conferred upon Daniel Whitehead Hicky, the gifted Atlanta writer and well-known poet. He departed yesterday for Richmond, where he will speak on "Modern Poetry" at the annual convention of the Virginia Writers' Club. Some of his poems from "Wild Heron," which will be published in October, will be selected by Mr. Hicky to read before club members on Saturday evening in Richmond.

This is the third time that the Atlanta has been chosen by Virginians to appear in Richmond before leading cultural organizations of the Old Dominion. Twice before, he read his original poems before the Poetry Society of Virginia. Mr. Hicky writes a readable column every Sunday in The Atlanta Constitution, under the caption of "As I Was Saying."

En route to Virginia the well-known Atlanta writer and poet will spend a day with Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Heath in Charlotte, N. C. Mrs. Heath is the sister of Randolph Scott, of moving picture fame, and is the attractive chaperone of a charming home in the Tarheel State. Mr. and Mrs. Heath are lifelong friends of Daniel Whitehead Hicky, who is one of the most widely read of southern poets.

• • • THE WINFIELD JONES has a new home. And to celebrate this fact, their charming debutante daughter, Florence, will entertain at an informal picnic supper tomorrow evening at the residence, which is located at 2488 Delwood drive.

A group of close friends of the popular deb has received clover invitations in rhyme to the affair, which begins at 7:30 o'clock, and from all indications the housewarming will be a festive one.

On the back of a square white card decorated with pictures of tempting refreshments is the following rhyme, composed by the hostess:

"I have a new house that I want you to see
So won't you please come and have supper with me?
At 7:30 sharp we start to dine,
So bring Mr. Blank and be on time.
It's May 24; on Friday night,
So we'll expect you there on sight."

Invited to the alfresco fete are Georgia Adams, Miriam Dinwiddie, Julia Block, Lillian Klein, Peggy Dutton, Josephine Sanders, Dorothy Petee, and Hal Clarke. Mat Gracy, Hugh Lester, Wharton Mitchell, Charles McCraw, Ed Mather, Edward Klein, Allen Webb, H. D. Webb, John Shields and Harbut Randall.

Mrs. Georgia Sullivan, the honor guest's youthful great-grandmother, wearing a becoming black and white printed crepe gown and small white straw hat. . . . Isabelle Boykin wearing a black mousseline gown sprinkled with yellow daisies.

Miss Nicholson Will Be Feted

Parties continue to be planned for Miss Eva Nicholson, whose marriage to Julius B. Shuman Jr. will be an event of June 5.

On Wednesday evening May 29 Miss Betty Mason will be hostess at a miscellaneous shower at her home on 4th street for the bride-elect and on June 4 Mrs. M. M. Zemek will entertain at a buffet supper at her home on Ponce de Leon avenue following the wedding rehearsal.

Miss Helen Bush will be hostess at a reception following the wedding. The affair will be held at the Cox Carlton hotel and will assemble out-of-town guests, members of the wedding party and a few close friends of the couple.

Last evening Mr. and Mrs. L. D. Strubling were hosts at a dinner party honoring the couple at their home on Piedmont avenue.

The dinner table was overlaid with a linen and lace cloth and was centered with a crystal bowl filled with pink roses. Completing the table appointments were crystal candelsticks holding burning pink tapers.

Invited for the occasion were Mr. and Mrs. P. F. Nicholson, Mrs. Libbie Duffy, Miss Margaret Panzie, Mrs. Hannah Ward and Miss Bertie Mae Fountain.

P.-T. A. Affairs Hold Spotlight

Presidents' Club of Atlanta Council of Parents and Teachers will give a tea Friday afternoon from 4 to 6 o'clock at the Standard Club.

Mrs. Charles Center, secretary of the National Congress of Parents and Teachers; Mrs. R. A. Long, president of the Georgia congress; Mrs. J. Elmer Slider, director of the eighth district; local P.-T. A. presidents, the school administration and the board of education will be the honor guests.

Mrs. Frank Ray, president, and Mrs. Bennett Hutchison, first vice president, will be assisted in entertaining by the hospitality committee, including Mesdames A. Lipschutz, Max Kessler, S. R. McGee, George W. Johnson, J. Y. Wilson, C. P. Aiken, H. W. Line, J. R. Dollar, W. E. McKamy, J. B. Harper, R. A. Williams, J. W. Armistead, H. King, J. M. Brewer, M. C. Callahan, Lester Forbes, L. S. Kelly, E. H. LeVet, Romm and W. C. Kendrick.

Committees in charge of the tea were: Reservations, Mrs. W. P. Dillon; decorations, Mesdames J. Y. Wilson, C. T. Joiner, G. Rainey, Williams, M. A. Lochridge and Harrison Dodd; invitations, Mrs. C. D. Garner; tickets, Mrs. Vernon Daniels.

Mrs. Charles D. Center, the only Georgian elected a member of the National P.-T. A. Congress, having been chosen secretary at the recent National P.-T. A. Congress held in Omaha, was honored at an alfresco luncheon given recently by Mr. and Mrs. Jere Wells.

The party was given at "Holly Oaks," the home of Mr. and Mrs. Wells, on Perkerson road, and assembled to meet Mrs. Center, the local members of the board of managers of the Georgia Congress of Parents and Teachers.

To Hold Installation. The installation of officers of the Alpha Gamma chapter of the Phi Tau Omega sorority will be held this evening at 8 o'clock at the home of Miss Carolyn Lanham on Collier road.

Following the installation Miss Lanham will entertain for the new officers. She will be assisted by Misses Elizabeth Kieley, Marion Brandon and Dorothy Densmore.

Georgia Adams, Miriam Dinwiddie, Julia Block, Lillian Klein, Peggy Dutton, Josephine Sanders, Dorothy Petee, and Hal Clarke. Mat Gracy, Hugh Lester, Wharton Mitchell, Charles McCraw, Ed Mather, Edward Klein, Allen Webb, H. D. Webb, John Shields and Harbut Randall.

MISS MILDRED RUTH CHANDLER.

Miss Chandler's Betrothal To Mr. Walz Announced

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Thompson today announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Mildred Ruth Chandler, to Mr. Arnold Walz of Easthampton and Worcester, Mass., the marriage to take place on June 23.

The bride-elect is the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Cleveland Chandler of this city. Her only sister is Mrs. Robert Thompson of this city.

Miss Chandler attended the public schools and later Montreat High school in Montreat, N. C. She graduated from Agnes Scott College, where she was a member of Poetry Club. Since then she has taught in the Fulton county schools.

The bridegroom-elect is the son of Henry Walz and the late Mrs. Walz, of Easthampton, Mass. His only sister is Miss Ruth Walz, of Easthampton, and his brothers are Carl and George Walz, of Easthampton, and Edward Walz, of Albany, N. Y.

Mr. Walz is a graduate of the Easthampton public schools and Amherst College, where he was a member of Phi Beta Kappa. He is now connected with the Social Security Board in Worcester, Mass., where the couple will reside.

One of the loveliest weddings planned for the month of June will be that of Miss Molly Ray Respass and her fiancé, Worley Thaxton Springfield, whose marriage will be solemnized on June 18 at 5:30 o'clock in the afternoon at Peachtree Road Methodist church. Rev. John Tate, of Barnesville, will officiate in the presence of an assemblage of relatives and friends of the popular bride.

Miss Molly Taber, of Columbia, S. C., cousin of the bride-elect, will be maid of honor and the bevy of bridesmaids will include Miss Mary Candler Neal, of Dalton; Miss Peggy McGhee, of Rome, and Misses Betsy May, Anne Wilhoit, Ruthie Lewis and Caroline Smith, all of Atlanta.

Edgar S. Nottingham III, of Omega, Ga., will be the groom-elect's best man, and the bride-elect's father, James L. Respass, will give her in marriage.

Mr. Springfield has chosen as his groomsmen George F. Cooper Jr., of Birmingham, Ala.; James H. McClure, of Union City; Dr. John G. Lee Jr., of Emory University; William L. Ballenger Jr., and James L. Respass Jr., brother of the bride-elect.

Ushers will be Jack Cathcart, Hamilton Broadnax, Roy Edmonds, all of Atlanta, and Reuben Geise Jr., of Augusta.

The ceremony will be followed by a reception at which the bride-elect's parents, Mr. and Mrs. James Respass, will entertain at their residence on Piedmont road.

Among initial parties planned

Democratic Club Holds Meeting.

Georgia Woman's Democratic Club met recently. Mrs. Fannie May Dabney presided, and William G. McRae spoke on "Unemployment Endangers Democracy."

Mother's Day was observed, with Mrs. R. H. Hankinson giving a reading. Music was furnished by Mrs. LaVert Mitchell, vocalist, accompanied at the piano by Mrs. W. Massey.

The club was urged to attend the musicals each month at 48 hospital by Mrs. W. B. Smith. Plans were completed for a meeting Friday evening at the Ansley, when all candidates for county office will address the group.

Woman's Auxiliary Holds Recent Meeting.

The women's auxiliary of the Pharmacists' Association met at the Southern College of Pharmacy with Mrs. R. C. Hood as hostess.

Mrs. T. M. McCleskey, the president, presided. Talks on the state convention held in Valdosta were made by Mrs. L. N. Camp and Mrs. W. J. Gower. An informal talk on the progress of pharmacy was made by Dr. E. W. Aldridge, professor of materia medica at the college.

A bingo party will be held by the auxiliary on May 24th, 8 o'clock, at the Atlanta Economy Drug Company, corner Cain and Jackson streets. Proceeds from the party will go to the scholarship fund, which is used for aiding students to further their education. For reservation call Mrs. T. M. McCleskey, HE 4109, or Mrs. J. W. Culpepper, DE 5237.

Croxton-Hession Date Announced

Invitations were received in Atlanta recently to the marriage of Miss Anne Boyd Croxton, of Washington, D. C., and John Joseph Hession, also of Washington, which will be a social event of June 1.

The ceremony takes place at an afternoon ceremony to be performed at 5 o'clock at Saint Margaret's church in Washington, with the pastor officiating. Lieutenant Warner W. Croxton, U. S. A., of Kelly Field, Texas, will give his sister in marriage.

Mrs. Joseph Lee Edwards, of Atlanta, will be matron of honor for her niece, and Miss Frances Newell, of New York, will be maid of honor. The latter and the bride-elect were schoolmates in Italy.

After the ceremony Mrs. Warner W. Croxton, the bride-elect's mother, will entertain at a reception for her daughter and Mr. Hession at the residence of Mrs. E. C. Lee, in Georgetown.

The engagement of Miss Croxton and Mr. Hession was recently announced, being of sincere interest here where the bride-elect made her debut several years ago. She spent the season with her uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Lee Edwards.

Among the Atlantans who will attend the ceremony are Mrs. Edwards and her mother, Mrs. A. R. Dearborn, Mrs. Hal Davison and Miss Mary Alice Gray Harrison.

Miss McMichael To Wed Mr. Fields

CUTHBERT, Ga., May 22.—Attracting much interest is the announcement made today of the wedding plans of Miss Ruth McMichael and Larry Fields.

The marriage of the popular couple will take place June 8 at the First Methodist church in Cuthbert. Rev. J. L. McKibben will perform the ceremony. Mrs. L. M. Moyer, organist, will present the musical program.

Miss McMichael's bridesmaids will include Miss Fannie McGeehe, Mrs. Fred Fletcher and Mrs. Robert Plunkett. Her cousin, Miss Norma Hixon, will be the junior bridesmaid.

The bride-elect's uncle, H. A. Hixon, of Atlanta, will give her in marriage.

Mr. Fields has chosen W. I. Leckie, of New York, as his best man, and his groomsmen will be Robert Plunkett and Fred Fletcher.

The couple will leave after the ceremony for a wedding trip to the east. Upon their return they will reside in their new home on Longwood drive.

Last Sunday Mr. and Mrs. Robert Plunkett were hosts at a buffet supper at their home on Peachtree circle at 7 o'clock honoring the bridal couple.

Present were Mr. and Mrs. Fred Fletcher, Mr. and Mrs. James Gillespie, Misses Martha Sheffield, Fannie McGeehe and Norman Pierman and Todd Pate.

Tulip Study Club Names Officers.

Mrs. J. J. Nicholson was re-elected president of the Tulip Study Club at the meeting held recently at the home of Mrs. Olin S. Cofer on Lullwater road.

The meeting was followed by a luncheon and a tour through the hostess' garden.

Other officers named include: First vice president, Mrs. C. A. Moyer; second vice president, Mrs. Keith Conway; recording secretary, Mrs. Myers R. Lovelace; corresponding secretary, Mrs. George Phillips; treasurer, Mrs. C. A. Rauschenberg; parliamentarian, Mrs. James N. Brawner.

Mrs. J. T. Robins acted as chairman of the nominating committee.

Mrs. Erwin Catts was welcomed as a new member. Mrs. George Phillips won 90 points at the Garden Center for a tray called "Dirt Gardener," and Mrs. Arthur Harris won 96 points for a wall pocket arrangement.

Mrs. Nicholson asked all members to attend fifth annual garden school at Athens June 12-14.

Bridal Couple Feted at Supper.

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph V. Le Crawl were hosts last evening at a buffet supper at their home on Park circle complimenting their cousin, Miss Elizabeth McClary, and her fiancé, Dr. Coleman Simmons Jr.

Assisting in entertaining was Mrs. Claude Fleming. Centering the lace-covered table was a silver bowl containing an artistic arrangement of pink roses and white snapdragons, flanked on either side by candelabra holding gleaming white tapers.

Invited were 22 friends of the honor guests.

For Miss Snyder.

Miss Betty Snyder, popular bride-elect, was the central figure at the bathroom shower and tea at the home of Mrs. King and her mother, Mrs. George Hutchens.

Miss Snyder will again be honored on Sunday when Miss Frances Hunt entertains at tea from 3 until 5 at her home on Barnett place.

Ticket Sale Rushed For Fish Fry.

North Fulton County Civic Club holds its first benefit fish fry and dance Saturday evening at 7 o'clock at Weinstock Gardens, opposite Lakewood.

Graham Jackson and his orchestra will provide music. Tickets for the affair must be bought today from Mrs. Louis B. Hicks, "cigar" chairman, Cherokee 1831. There will be no ticket selling at the gate.

U. S. Is Making 'Charley Mac' One Huge Fort Scheduled for Of Puerto Rico C. O. P. Reward

$40,000,000 Is Being Spent To Guard Atlantic Side of Canal.

By RICHARD G. HUBLER.

For North American Newspaper Alliance. AIR HEADQUARTERS, BORINQUEN FIELD, AGUADILLA, P. R., May 22.—For the first time since the new $40,000,000 national defense program got under way at Puerto Rico last September, War Department officials have allowed a complete and exclusive preview of work being done.

Under the supervision of Lieutenant Colonel Karl S. Axtater, commanding officer of Borinquen field, the inspection comprised a 2½-hour survey in a 7½-ton Douglas bomber. It included a bird's-eye view of every major military operation on the island, as well as the proposed $1,500,000 submarine base at St. Thomas.

The aerial reconnaissance—at heights varying from 500 to 3,000 feet—began and ended at Borinquen, defense nerve center of the vital Panama Canal approaches. This airfield of 1,900 acres, for which the army paid over $325,000 and on which it plans to spend millions more, was once a forest of Cogollo palms and sugarcane.

Now it is a geometrically planned array of dark-green barracks and yawning chasms that will eventually be foundations for gigantic hangars. Expected to house some 3,500,000 men and base 200 pursuit and bombing planes.

Borinquen is the "air army" on which depends the military integrity of the Caribbean area.

The tour began at 2:30 in the afternoon. The bomber took off with Lieutenants Samuel P. Triffy and Willard W. Lazarus at the controls. Twin motors roaring, it trundled down the 4,000-foot runway, crossed a road and asphalt recently completed and circled the field once at an altitude of 1,000 feet, heading east (Borinquen lies at the western tip of Puerto Rico, overlooking strategic Mona passage).

Beneath it lay the yellow checkerboard of tents and the narrow ditches of barracks, the black-and-white runway cutting its way through the center. On the left was the Atlantic, scouted daily for foreign shipping and possible underwater lurkers by the famous neutrality patrol.

See All of Island From Air.

At a speed of 200 miles an hour, the Douglas ate up the 60 miles to the capital city in a few minutes—the whole island may be covered from tip to tip in 40 flying minutes and crossed at any point in 10. Lieutenant Triffy turned: "You can see all the way across the island from 3,000 feet," he shouted. "At 20,000, every inch of shoreline is visible."

Swinging out to sea and approaching San Juan from the north, we sighted the huge peninsula that hooks protectively over the harbor, with El Morro grimly on guard.

Behind the fort, at anchor in the bay, lay the cigar-shapes of seven destroyers—turned over to waiting for orders to patrol the Dutch West Indies in case Hitler decides to invade the Netherlands. Beside them was the flat cigar-box of Isla Grande, the new $9,000,000 navy seaplane base. Built on reclaimed soil dredged from the bottom of the harbor, it is already taking shape as one of the most formidable fields in the world.

Banking sharply and cutting to the south, we hedged over a range of red-brown hills, and abruptly rising hills on the outskirts of the city. Before it, in a scooped-out bight, lay a distillery—no doubt camouflage, for directly behind it lay the encampment of Fort Miles, named after the general who took the island for the United States in 1898.

"You know why that's there?" demanded Lieutenant Triffy over the thunder of the motors. "Because who could shell that place from the sea without a big air force? And who's going to lick us?" He gestured at the saffron tents and the tiny flag fluttering above them and banked again in the direction of St. Thomas.

Crossing over the channel between the two islands, we spotted a vessel ploughing south toward South America. According to invariable army custom, we swooped.

Completely Mobilized.

From Henry back to Borinquen, a 60-mile spin, there were no military works, planned or building. Critics of the Puerto Rico program have often pointed out this lack of fortification on the southern side of the island, citing the Spanish, Dutch, English, and final American campaigns that were conducted from that side.

But army men declare the only possible danger can come via the Atlantic. Besides, they say, they are organized on an almost completely mobilized basis, even to anti-aircraft units, with fast asphalt roads. With sufficient warning by the air force, they feel they could move enough men and material in force to repel any invasion.

The ship settled to a landing before a group of gaping Jiberos, native hillmen.

"How'd you like our island?" asked Triffy.

"Fine. When will you be ready to take on all comers?"

"Give us a year," he said. "We'll be set."

Miss Stella Coles King Weds John Vaught in LaGrange

LAGRANGE, Ga., May 22.—Classic simplicity characterized the marriage of Miss Stella Coles King, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Barrington James King, and John William Vaught, of Little Rock, Ark. The service took place Tuesday evening at 8:30 o'clock at the home of the bride's parents, and was witnessed by a fashionable assemblage of relatives and friends.

The bride party ascended an aisle of ribbons to the altar, with Mrs. Kenneth D. Grace, Misses Mary Traylor, Isabelle Badger and Tudor Trotter, all of LaGrange, serving as ribbon bearers.

The bridesmaids, Miss Katherine Porter, of Cocoa, Fla., and Miss Ruth Rhoads, of Wilmington, Del., and the maid of honor, Miss Virginia Hand Callaway, of Blue Springs and LaGrange, wore gowns of white marquisette fashioned with heart-shaped necklines, puffed sleeves and bouffant-skirts trimmed in swirls of self-material. They carried bouquets of Gerber daisies in pastel shades, with roses, the predominating color, featured in the ribbons.

The ribbon bearers were also gowned in white marquisette, featuring V-necklines, puffed sleeves and full skirts trimmed with shirred pockets. Their flowers were Gerber daisies fashioned into wrist corsages.

The bride's classic beauty was emphasized by her wedding gown of lustrous white satin made with a high neckline, long sleeves, and a quilted bodice. Her veil of illusion tulle was of fingertip length fitted to the head with a coronet of orange blossoms. Her flowers were gardenias showered with lilies of the valley.

The bride entered with her father, who gave her in marriage, and was met by the groom and his brother, Morgan Vaught, of Fort Worth, Texas, who was best man.

Rev. A. E. Dallas, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, performed the ceremony, and music was presented by Barrington J. King Jr., brother of the bride.

Following the ceremony, Mr. and Mrs. King entertained at a wedding supper. The bride's table, overlaid with a cloth of Italian cutwork and lace, was centered with an epergne of gardenias and lilies of the valley. At one end was placed a tiered wedding cake and at the other a silver coffee service at which Miss Emily Rowe, of LaGrange, presided. Mrs. Nathaniel Slaughter Jr., of LaGrange, served punch.

Miss Tudor Trotter and Miss Margaret Edmondson, of LaGrange, kept the bride's book.

The bridal couple left by motor for a wedding trip, and after June 15 will reside in Little Rock, at 2123 Seventeenth street.

The bride chose for traveling a two-piece suit of silk crepe in Copen blue and white print. She wore a hat of navy straw and navy accessories, and a shoulder bouquet of gardenias. Her top coat was of beige seaweed fashioning along swaggar lines with collar of beige lynx.

Among out-of-town guests from Atlanta were Mr. and Mrs. J. V. Vaught, Miss Elizabeth Vaught, and James Vaught, Mr. and Mrs. Hill R. Huffman, Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Rushon, Miss Polly Rushon and Wight Rushon, Clyde L. King Jr., Dr. and Mrs. Troy Bivings, Mrs. J. K. Arnold, Mrs. H. K. Gilliland, Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Dougherty, James and Dan Dougherty, Mr. and Mrs. Blair Proctor, Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Woodside III, Mrs. George Craig and Mr. and Mrs. H. Carson Smith.

Miss Kendrick Feted.

Mrs. C. M. McQuarrie and Mrs. William B. Brewster entertained yesterday at a luncheon and handkerchief shower at the home of the latter at G. M. A. honoring Miss Edith Kendrick, a popular bride-elect.

The army colors of red, white and blue predominated in the appointments, the table having been centered with a crystal bowl of white roses. Gift handkerchiefs were tied with red ribbon to resemble a corsage.

Present were Misses Belle Meador, Sara McFadden, Nancy Keeler, Mimi O'Beirne, Mesdames William Benedict, W. J. Kendrick, Channing Whitman and the hostesses.

For Bridal Couple.

Mrs. M. B. Cameron will entertain this evening at her home on Myrtle street honoring Miss Nathalie Whitfield and her fiancé, Keith S. Brown, the affair to precede the couple's wedding rehearsal.

Earlier today Mrs. Cameron will hold open house honoring Miss Whitfield.

Topnotch Films Booked in City For Tomorrow

Typhoon, World War, Romance, Adventure Are on Bills.

By LEE ROGERS,
Motion Picture Editor.

Based on what advance reports are available, the new films opening in Atlanta tomorrow will offer theatergoers the most entertainment and the best produced movies, enacted by the best casts, in many a week.

We've only seen one so far, and that's "Typhoon," which opens tomorrow at the Fox. It is in beautiful technicolor, has a great fire, a typhoon, a submarine sinking, a shipwreck, a drunken brawl, peaceful tropical beauty, comedy and a love interest. That's about all you can ask of any film.

The others look as good. Vivien Leigh, the most popular actress today, has the star billing in "Waterloo Bridge" at the Capitol. Merle Oberon, one of the better actresses, is cast in a light romance, "Over the Moon," opening also tomorrow at the Rialto.

Capitol.

Earle M. Holden, manager of the Capitol theater, announces the presentation of the special stage show, "French Casino," at the Capitol for three days starting Friday, will bring to a close the stage show season at that theater.

Throughout the summer months, the Capitol will operate on a policy of presenting two first-run features every week at bargain prices. A new program will be offered each Sunday through Wednesday, and another new program every Thursday through Saturday.

The Capitol has a wide selection of outstanding program pictures from a main line of the major Hollywood studios, and these will be presented during all the summer months.

"French Casino," which will be offered on the Capitol stage starting tomorrow, is one of the largest units yet brought to the theater, and features a cast of 37 outstanding artists including a line of 12 beautiful Parisienne models.

Headline vaudeville acts to be seen include Nellie Arnaut and her brothers, Bobby Henshaw, world rambler and his wife, Joe Arena and Company, sensational acrobatic act, Mlle. Rochelle, the toast of Paris, and a host of others.

On the screen, "King of the Lumberjacks," an outdoor action drama, will be offered starring

Fox.

Ranking with the earthquake effects in the film "San Francisco," Paramount will present the greatest storm sequence ever put before technicolor cameras in "Typhoon," which opens tomorrow at the Fox theater with Dorothy Lamour and Robert Preston teamed.

Fire, typhoon and tidal wave are brought together in a single furious sequence, culminating in a gale in which whole palm trees are uprooted and go hurtling by in the tropic dusk.

First visitors to Dorothy's lonely Eden come in the persons of Robert Preston, Lynne Overman and J. Carol Naish, who arrive in Overman's privately owned submarine. Robert Preston strays from his party and is found by Dorothy and Koko. Dorothy literally captures him, makes a scanty cloth pareu for Bob to wear instead of his civilized clothes.

Briefly, the action follows the sailor's arrival on Dorothy's Eden, and the subsequent mutiny by J. Carol Naish and his Kanaka crew. Meanwhile, a vengeful Polynesian chief is pursuing the sailors, and when he finds their island rendezvous, he burns the island in an attempt to destroy them all. The typhoon, filmed in all its raging splendor, wrecks his plans. But in between those lines, there's plenty of swift-moving action.

Loew's.

Many words have been put into the mouth of Confucius. But it is on record that he did say, "One picture-worth 10,000 words." And Mervyn LeRoy took the Chinese sage at his word, raising the ante 10,000 words in directing dramatic scenes of London under wartime conditions of 1940 and 1917 for "Waterloo Bridge." Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer picture, starring Vivien Leigh and Robert Taylor, and coming to Loew's tomorrow.

Every war scene in the film, the London blackout, soldiers departing from Waterloo station, underground air-raid shelters and other authentic settings of the periods, were brought to life from photographs and sketches which appeared in English newspapers and magazines.

Dialogue in the scenes was kept at a minimum, LeRoy using the camera to tell the story. In each case, the director placed his people as they were in the photographs, picking exact types for soldiers, wives, mothers and sweethearts. Advertisements current at the time, billboards announcing plays which were running in London of 1917, signs, train schedules and war posters were used to add color to the sets. From a technical standpoint, the most difficult set to reproduce was the London street in a blackout. The scene opens at twilight, deepening into complete darkness as the camera moves down the street. The opening shot of a group of Londoners standing around a shop door, listening to a voice over a loudspeaker giving information concerning blackout precautions, is actually an animated photograph, one taken on the fateful day of September 3, 1939, when the second World War was declared.

Rialto.

"Over the Moon," the Alexander Korda-directed picture based upon the popular story by Robert Sherwood, comes to the Rialto theater in full technicolor, starting tomorrow morning.

Merle Oberon is the star, supported by a leading man who'll wow the feminine contingent in the audience, Rex Harrison or Manager W. T. Murray is no judge. Then, in the cast there are such clever players as Louis Morell, Ursula Jeans, Robert Douglas, Zena Dora and Mackenzie Ward.

It is a picture of the comedy romantic type, but with a humanity and suspense that lifts it above the productions made for laugh purposes exclusively.

One feature of this picture is of particular interest. The costumes worn by Miss Oberon and other feminine members of the cast are so new that they undoubtedly will have a strong trend in the styles of the next few months, while they are sufficiently startling to contain intrigue for the male sex, too.

It is the story of an English girl who unexpectedly falls heir to a fortune high in the millions. She is engaged to a young doctor, but puts him aside while she takes a fling at the "gay" life in the resorts of prewar Europe. Of course the goldiggers and the gigolos get on her trail, and it looks for quite a while as though she is about to be well-victimized. But there is a gorgeous surprise to the plot. She—well, see it for yourself.

Paramount.

"It All Came True," Warner Brothers' film version of the famous Louis Bromfield story, will open tomorrow at the Paramount theater with Ann Sheridan in the starring role, and Jeffrey Lynn, Humphrey Bogart and Zasu Pitts featured with her.

Louis Bromfield, author of such fine novels as "The Rains Came" and others, now deals with the hopes and disappointments of a group of people living in a New York boarding house. With the intensity of plot and characteriza-

Ed Kane Sings At Music Club Party Tonight

Former Atlantan Will Help Group Celebrate 25th Anniversary.

By MOZELLE HORTON YOUNG.

Ed Kane, former Atlantan who "made good in the big city" with his golden tenor voice, will appear at the Atlantic Music Club's twenty-fifth birthday party at the Piedmont Driving Club tonight.

Mr. Kane's start on the road to fame came when he won a nationwide radio contest back in '31, and furthered it by winning the National Federation of Music Clubs' contest in '33. For seven years he has been tenor soloist at the Collegiate Church of Saint Nicholas. Last summer he was a member of Queena Mario's Opera Company, singing at Lake Placid, and Buck Hills Falls, and at her famous barn theater at Bethel, Conn. He expects to spend this summer with the same company. He studies operatic acting with Madame Mario, and thinks this experience invaluable.

Theater Guild Here To Offer Powerful Play

Mountain Drama, "Sun-Up," Will Be Staged Tonight, Tomorrow.

By MOZELLE HORTON YOUNG.

"Sun-Up," a powerful three-act play by Lula Vollmer, formerly of Atlanta and a well known contributor of stories to national magazines, will be presented tonight and tomorrow night at the Castle Playhouse, 87 Fifteenth street, by the theater guild. The play is directed by Maureen Beall, a member of the cast. Miss Beall was formerly with the New York company which presented "Sun-Up" on Broadway. The plot of "Sun-Up" is laid in the mountains of North Carolina, and deals with the primitive instincts of a mountaineer family suddenly confronted with the problems of life occasioned by contact with established law and order. It is a play full of humor and pathos.

Ken Must Stay Out of Range Of Bolo Punch

Overlin Battles Garcia Tonight for Middle-weight Crown.

By WHITNEY MARTIN.

NEW YORK, May 22.—(P)—Ken Overlin gets his shot at the New York edition of the world middle-weight title tomorrow night, and he might do right well by himself.

Overlin is a strange challenger for a title, inasmuch as he's been around a long time, and has something like 173 fights behind him. The logical question is: Where has he been all this time? And the equally logical reply is: Where hasn't he been?

He's been from Buffalo to Borneo and from Sedalia to Australia. His diary was written in a time table. Last year he had 15 fights in 12 different cities, meeting Ben Brown so often they began to catch on to each other's signals.

He is managed by Vince Dundee, who has developed the remote-control technique to a high degree. Vince would book a fight, send Overlin an urgent wire telling him to go to such and such a place for a fight, and then check the morning papers the next day to see what happened.

NOT OVER DOZEN.

Everything usually happened for the best. Overlin lost not more than a dozen of his 173 bouts, his last defeat being at the hands of Teddy Yarosz at Houston in March, 1939. One knockout blow in his record. He was kayoed by Freddie Steele, but he has an alibi for that one. He was suffering from jaundice, which he admits not only was serious but hard to spell.

Born in Deatur, Ill., Overlin is a product of the navy school of boxing. He joined the navy and for some time was headquartered at Norfolk, Va., where he began to pick up loose change by engaging in pro bouts.

After leaving the navy he packed up his toothbrush and ring trunks and started traveling. His only training was fighting, which he did whenever his manager could find a spot for him.

He's what is known as a "cutie" in the ring. That is, he's harder to hit than a daily double, although his own punch is a little on the feathery side. For want of a better description, he's something like Maxie Rosenbloom, and Dumb Dan Morgan, astute judge of fighters, says Overlin is the best boxer the middleweight division has seen in years.

He's as casual in a ring as if he were strolling through a park. When he was meeting Al Wardlow, a boy with a terrific punch, in Pittsburgh last summer, he spotted Mike Jacobs at the ringside.

Whatta Man!

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., May 22.—J. B. (Ears) Whitworth, long the Southeastern conference's leading two-fisted eater, has reached new and brilliant heights in the gastronomic field.

Thousands of words were written on the accomplishments of athletes in the recent track meet, but one of the real features of the event is just coming to light.

Armed only with knife and fork and an enormous appetite, Whitworth carved himself a new niche, not to mention the steak, in the hall of epicurean fame.

Unwilling to take advantage of his contemporaries, Whitworth first went through the regular banquet menu and later, at a midnight snack, unexpectedly shattered all previous records.

Undoubtedly his strategy caught his opponents by surprise.

Whit started off innocently enough by devouring a piece of chocolate pie. Then he feinted with a left and reached for a tin of sardines and a box of crackers with his right.

The blitzkrieg attack which shattered the morale of the combined opposition followed. Whitworth delivered an uppercut on a large steak and French fries. A whole loaf of bread was included.

Not quite ready to deliver the finishing blow, Whit put over a one-two punch on a bowl of chili and then triumphantly finished with 10 sticks of candy and a well-known soft drink.

Fatal Mistake Cracker teammates of Willard Marshall sit in the dugout and heckle rival pitchers by exhorting them to sneak one by him.

Now and then it works. A pitcher gets mad enough to try to throw a fast ball by Marshall and another home run is chalked up to his credit.

The youthful batting star is no sucker for a curve ball. He hits all types of pitching well. But it is suicide to give him something fast without anything on it.

Unless appearances are deceptive, the Crackers soon will have the real power club of the league. As soon as Burge is able to grip a bat as he did before suffering a broken thumb, a great deal more power will be added to go along with the hitting of Marshall, Mailho, McQuillen, Anderson, Williams, Richards and Hafey, who is improving.

May Have Answer One of these days Manager Paul Richards may try Red McQuillen in center field and find that he was standing too close and couldn't see the forest for the trees.

McQuillen, a much-improved outfielder, roams far and wide in left on defense. He has unusual speed for his size.

It's worth a try because the combined hitting average of the outfield trio forbids any thought of benching one of the three for a newcomer. A real problem concerns where to use Jack Suydam when he recovers from a hand injury.

Ferdinand's Corner

How Odd Dept.: The Barons are proud of the versatility of several of their ball players, including Ogorek, Luce, Taub, Moore and Vance, pointing out they all can play eight different positions. But what they'd give for a couple of hall players if they could only pitch. . . . And had you heard that Tennessee may be shopping for a new head football coach if war comes, or if Major Bob Neyland feels his country needs him. Neyland resigned from the engineering corps to return to Tennessee, but he is ready to rejoin the army at any time. . . . When S. E. C. football coaches gathered here last week they expressed the opinion Georgia Tech would be around the top in football for some time to come. They have a wholesome regard for W. A. Alexander. . . . The Southwest conference says its champion must play in the Cotton Bowl, but Coach Homer Norton, of the Texas Aggies, says it isn't so. Norton declares the school will decide whether it wants to go to the Cotton, Sugar, Orange or Rose Bowl.

The odds are still good that if Southern Cal is the Coast team and the Aggies have a fine record they'll play on New Year's Day at Pasadena. . . . The fact that Joe Vance, Baron pitcher, still holds the record for circling bases in the fastest time—13 seconds flat—is not of particular interest to Southern league players. . . . They're interested in seeing how fast he can throw that baseball after all these years. . . . Earl Mann was secretary of the Rocky Mount club when Vance, a member of the team, set the record in 1929. . . . Lack of support ruined the Vance cause in his debut as a Baron last night. . . . In playing shortstop for Knoxville Marshall Mauldin has now held down every position except catcher.

Simultaneously with the announcement of Steele's appearance, Promoter Bill Hartman revealed that effective immediately, Jim Downing, one of the country's best known personalities in the boxing and wrestling game, would be associated with him in future programs, in the capacity of matchmaker.

Poindexter Breezes to Second Victory Behind Heavy Attack.

By JACK TROY.

RICKWOOD PARK, BIRMINGHAM, Ala., May 22.—Lightning flashed and the rains came but it really was the climbing Crackers who washed out the Birmingham Barons tonight. Directing a 16-hit attack against Paul Gehrmann, Dee Moore and Manager Ira Smith, the Crackers took their second straight game of the series, 16 to 4.

Rain held up the game for 30 minutes in the Crackers' half of the ninth. It was finished in privacy. Jennings Poindexter pitched the Crackers to their seventh straight victory as he won his second game of the season.

Poindexter allowed nine hits, mostly scattered, and was unusually effective for eight innings. He allowed only two earned runs. After the long delay Lochbaum took the mound and allowed another run in the ninth.

ED TO 10 TO 3.

The Crackers led, 10 to 3, after the sixth and then had a big eighth inning, scoring six runs.

Charley Glock hit his first homer as a Cracker in the sixth when the Crackers threw a five spot at Moore. Glock had a great night, hitting a triple, home run and single, driving in four runs and scoring three himself.

Emil Mailho walked four times and got two hits. Tom Hafey drove in four runs, Red McQuillen three and Willard Marshall and Paul Richards two each.

The Crackers have achieved complete revenge for the happenings in the Baron series in Atlanta and tomorrow night will seek a sweep of the series with Luman Harris, Birmingham boy, in the box. He will be faced by Pete Naktienis, Baron lefty. Harry will be going after his third victory.

TWO RUNS.

The Crackers scored two runs without a hit in the first inning. Glock was safe on Vaughn's error. Mailho walked. McQuillen fouled out to Aleno. Burge walked. Marshall flied to deep center and Glock scored after the catch.

Mailho moved to third. A double steal followed, with Mailho scoring.

With two out in the second, Glock tripled to left and scored on McQuillen's infield hit.

Mele backed up against the right-field signs and caught Marshall's drive in the third.

JOHNSON HITS.

Henry Johnson, the Barons' leading pitcher, went into the game as a pinch-hitter and drove in the first two runs in the fifth. Aleno walked and Del Savio singled. Mailho fumbled the ball and both runners advanced a base. Owens fanned. Johnson, batting for Gehrmann, singled sharply to center, scoring Aleno and Del Savio.

Dee Moore went in to pitch. Poindexter bounced a double over the first baseman's head and Glock followed with a home run high in the right-field stands. Mailho drew his fourth walk of the game and McQuillen sent him to third with a single. McQuillen advanced on a partial wild pitch. Marshall walked intentionally. Hafey

Talent Scouts Combing South: Black-and-Tan Hound Sought

Studio Wants Old-Time Lop-Eared, Flea-Bitten Hound Dog To Play 'Julie' in Filming of 'The Yearling.'

By MELVIN PAZOL.

Some lucky dog can break into the movies if he can fit the description of "Julie" in Marjorie Rawlings' Pulitzer prize-winning novel, "The Yearling."

Talent scouts have been combing the country in general and the South in particular to find just such a hound, but so far their efforts have gone unrewarded.

Vince Reusch, business manager for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, west coast studios, is in Atlanta on his second trip in quest of this old-time black-and-tan hound between five and seven years old.

Searching for Scarlett O'Hara was simple compared to the problem of finding "Julie."

HARD TO LOCATE.

For one thing "Julie" can't boost her own stock, but must depend on her master to send in photos, etc. Another vexing item is that the type of mongrel hound in Miss Rawlings' story is seemingly extinct today, for all hunting dogs "interviewed" so far are fox dogs and "Julie" was a hound dog.

Julie and Walker hounds won't do, the talent scouts insist, and white coloring disqualifies the applicant for movie fame.

In the picture the dog must tackle a bear, which means that as soon as "Julie" is located she will be sent to California to train for her part. Bears have already been obtained from the Milwaukee zoo. Deer were easy to obtain, and the rest of the dogs have been secured, but not elusive "Julie," the pot-luker heroine.

The dog sought must have lots of "character," a very wrinkled face on the extremely mournful side, and must answer to the description of a "flea-bitten, lop-eared hound."

CAN'T BE TOO YOUNG.

The nearest thing talent scouts have been able to locate to date was a hound they ran across near the Fulton county camp at Stone-wall. But, alas, this dog was too young.

So, if you own an old-time black-and-tan hound you are requested to send a photograph to Clint Davis, care the United States Forest Service, Glenn building, Atlanta, Ga., who is co-operating with the movie concern in their unusual quest. Please include a description of the dog with the picture. The dog must be a "catch" dog, but does not have to be a bear dog. A coon dog or a hog-chaser will do.

Arrangements have been completed with the United States Forest Service for the filming of the exterior scenes at the Ocala National forest, the locale of "The Yearling." The remainder of the picture will be filmed in California.

Reese Advances In Kennolia Play

In the second-round matches of Kennolia's annual spring tournament, Champ Reese, playing brilliantly, defeated Bob Hall, 6-1, 6-3, and Bobby Hill eliminated Jack Kenny, 6-3, 6-3.

Thursday at 5:30 will feature the long-awaited match between Jack Teagle, the ace of Kennolia, and Champ Reese. Another match of interest to watch will be between Dr. Glenn Dudley and Cornez Suttle at 5 o'clock p. m.

Other matches are: 4:00—Earl Maddox vs. Bobby Hill, 5:30—Weldon Selekty vs. Hank Crawford, Howard Barrett vs. Glenn McConnell.

Crackers Send Connie Ryan To Savannah Team

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., May 22.—The Crackers are sending Savannah Connie Ryan on a 24-hour-recall basis to help out in an emergency.

Joe Dobbins, Indian second baseman, suffered a broken leg Tuesday night, and Manager Chick Autry dispatched an SOS to Mann.

Autry figures Ryan will prove this stop-gap the Indians need to keep them on top. Ryan had counted heavily on going home to New Orleans with the Crackers, but he cheerfully changed his plans.

The Crackers will be left without an extra infielder, but Dewey Williams is a good stand-in. Jack Suydam will be put back on the active list Friday.

PIPPEN SOLD.

DETROIT, May 22.—(P)—Henry Phippen, right-handed pitcher obtained by the Detroit Tigers last year from the Philadelphia Athletics, was sold today to the Oakland club of the Pacific Coast league. The amount involved was not disclosed.

IT ALL CAME TRUE

Mr. Salmon Opens the Show For Mr. Grasselli by Reading Some of His Poems

By Louis Bromfield.

SYNOPSIS. Miss Minnie leaves her brownstone house to her servants, Mrs. Lefferty and Maggie Ryan, who live in it with their four odd old guests. Maggie's torching daughter, Sal, storms home to stay. Later, Mrs. Lefferty's long-absent son, Tom, arrives with the sinister Mr. Grasselli as boarder. Sal bares the fact that he is a crook and knows the secret of the old ladies' need money. The bank notifies that the house is to be sold for taxes. Sal gets Grasselli's promise to pay it, which angers Tommy. Grasselli now dines downstairs and impresses the four guests who plan to put on an amateur show for him. Sal and Tommy are coming to a better understanding. NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

INSTALLMENT XI.

Once her anger over Tommy's suspicions had died down, she came to see that he wasn't to blame for what he had believed. But she was aware that the announcement had brought about another change in Tommy's attitude toward her. It seemed to bring her one more step nearer to the real Tommy. He no longer bristled when she came upon him suddenly while he was working, but accepted her presence easily.

There were times, too, when it seemed to her that they would never get anywhere, because they were too used to each other. This she found much more difficult to combat than the problem of her own temper. She should have pretended to be strange and aloof and different, a mysterious Sarah Jane. Thinking about it, there were moments when, in her own room, she acted out for herself how she should have behaved; this she did by raising her head, lowering her eyelids, moving with the old show-girl walk she knew so well. She would study her face in the mirror, trying one expression after another in order to appear seductive and mysterious. But before long she always broke down and laughed because she looked so funny.

And so after a time, her rehearsals of seduction and mystery in front of the mirror degenerated into a travesty of all the tricks she had observed in the movie queens, done for her own amusement during the hours when she had nothing else to do. She got out her old make-up box and made up her face to give it a faraway look and plastered her eyelashes with mascara and drew a cupid's bow which had nothing to do with nature. The result made her laugh so loudly that Maggie came into her room one evening to find out what was the matter.

"Sure," said Maggie. "You'd better go on and get yourself something to do or they'll be shutting you up."

Finally Sarah Jane shaved her eyebrows and with a pencil created new ones, arched far above the ones she had inherited from Mr. Ryan. The false eyebrows, with the veiled mascara look gave her a surprised half-witted expression as if she had just been startled out of a deep slumber. And made up as she was, she went downstairs to poor Miss Minnie's drawing room where Tommy was working at the piano.

He did not hear her enter but when she was close to him, he turned, looking frightened, and said, "What's the matter with you? Have you gone nuts?"

She didn't answer him but walked across the room, languorously seated herself on poor Miss Minnie's "love-seat" and lighted a cigarette. Then Tommy burst into roars of laughter. When he finished, he suddenly said, "I've got an idea!"

"What is it?" asked Sarah Jane. "Wait till I get it worked out. Go away and leave me in peace." And almost at once he took up a piece of paper and began working.

"That, I suppose, is genius," said Sarah Jane.

But there was something else which troubled her about Tommy. He had never told her anything of what had happened to him during the five years he had been away—nothing beyond the mere statement that he had been in "Chicago, St. Louis, Panama and a lot of other places." And slowly she began to be suspicious. There were times when in the midst of a mood of gaiety he would grow quiet and he would look old and tired again and a little gray, and she'd want to ask, "What's the matter? Tell me about it." But she did not dare, for fear of driving him further from her.

Whatever it was that changed him thus, was something which took him far from her, something that seemed to undo all the good she accomplished. He would become remote and hostile, as he had been that evening in the Excelsior Club.

At last the night of the performance arrived. Mrs. Lefferty arranged to have supper a little early so that she and Maggie could both be up the drawing room by 9 o'clock. Everybody was excited, even Mr. Grasselli, to whom the performance offered at least a change from the inevitable routine of rummaging. Miss Flint seemed to be almost beside herself and at dinner talked incessantly. After supper, while Mrs. Lefferty was downstairs helping Maggie, she acted as hostess in Mrs. Lefferty's place, pouring out the coffee with the air of a Duchess. When Mrs. Lefferty came up at last from the kitchen, she brought with her a bottle of old brandy—one of the last bottles that remained from "the old gentleman's" cellar left by poor Miss Minnie.

When Mr. Grasselli tasted it, his eyes closed, and he smacked his lips. "What is that?" he asked, and Mrs. Lefferty showed him the bottle so covered with dust and mold that the label was no longer legible.

"That's great stuff," said Mr. Grasselli. "It's worth a lot of money. How much have you got?"

"I don't know," said Mrs. Lefferty. "Maybe 25 bottles; maybe a few more. We don't use it much." "Twenty-five bottles of that liquid gold!" said Mr. Grasselli. "You want to sell it?"

"I don't know," said Mrs. Lefferty. "I'd have to talk to Maggie about it." "Whenever you want to sell it, let me know. I'll make an offer right now of fifteen dollars apiece for every bottle you'll sell me."

"I wouldn't want to cheat you," said Mrs. Lefferty. "Did you say fifteen dollars?" "You ain't cheating me, and I said fifteen dollars!"

Then Maggie appeared in a purple dress, wearing poor Miss Minnie's gold watch that pinned on with a gold fleur-de-lis. All day her hair had been done up in kid curls, and now it had blossomed forth in an elaborate coiffure with rolls on the side and the back, instead of the usual tight screw.

While Sarah Jane and Mrs. Lefferty arranged the room, Tommy played the piano. All the chairs and "love seat" were removed from the room, and the piano stood, leaving it empty for a stage with two entrances—one into the dining room and one into the back hall. Then Mrs. Lefferty drew the curtains which in earlier divided the room in half, to keep in the heat and keep out drafts, and the illusion of a small theater was complete.

At the opposite end the audience seated itself. Mr. Grasselli had been given the seat of honor in the center and next to him sat Miss Flint. For the occasion she had tied a bit of black velvet about her throat, and she wore a butterfly of rhinestones pinned in her flaming hair.

She smoked incessantly and kept saying, "Oh, I've never been so excited!"

Presently, Mr. Salmon retired and everything was ready, and Sarah Jane stood up and announced that the program was about to begin. Mr. Salmon, she said, would open the program by reading two or three of his poems.

After that would appear the Great Boldini and Fanto, the wonder dog, and the performance would close with "Ryan and Lefferty in a few songs."

Then Tommy left the piano and came to sit in the audience, and Sarah Jane summoned Mr. Salmon, who had retired upstairs in order to make an entrance, and suddenly, as if they were in a real theater, the audience lowered their voices and conversed in whispers.

Mr. Salmon chose two poems out of his Village period. One was called, "In Praise of Venus," and the other, "The Tea Shop Under the El."

Long ago, as a handsome o-eyed boy reading before the literary ladies of the days before the war, he had acquired an impressive technique, in which there remained traces of the Oscar Wilde influence. First of all, he had to have a table against which to lean at moments when, apparently overcome by his own music, he grew weak and vaporous.

He never stood on both feet, but on one or the other, the legs slightly bent at the knees, so that while he read he moved with a faint swaying motion like that of an elephant in the zoo. His eyes were rolled upward and out, above the audience. And he had a special voice, with a deep organ quality which he never used on other occasions.

Now, as Tommy pulled back the curtains, Mr. Salmon took his place languorously beside poor Miss Minnie's teakwood table. For a moment he seemed to go into a trance, waiting for the audience to grow calm.

Wells Urges 10,000 School Bond Ballots

Says That Number Needed to Pass Measure Under Law.

More than 10,000 Fulton county citizens must vote in favor of the $750,000 school bond issue June 5 to insure its passage, Jere A. Wells, county school superintendent, last night told an audience at the Alonzo Richardson High School, College Park.

Preliminary registration reports by T. Earl Suttles, tax collector, indicate that more than 20,000 persons are eligible to cast ballots in the election, Wells asserted.

Speaking from the rostrum of the 30-year-old school, which is a brick veneer structure, ill-arranged and without an armory, an adequate auditorium, gymnasium or cafeteria, the county school board said a new high school building is planned for College Park on a nine-acre tract, which formerly was a part of the old Cox College site.

Mrs. Charles D. Center presided, and candidates for two commission posts, ordinary and sheriff spoke to the gathering assembled primarily in the interest of the bond issue.

"The law requires that two-thirds of those who vote in the election must cast their ballots for bonds, and that included in the favorable votes must be a majority of the registered voters," Wells said.

"It will be easy to get two-thirds of those who vote to cast their ballots favoring the issue, but it is difficult to create sufficient interest to get a majority of the voters to visit the polls."

Wells pointed out that about 4,000 persons have registered in recent weeks, and said he presumed they intend to vote for the bonds.

"If, however, you registered to vote for bonds and fail to vote, you are hurting rather than helping the issue, because you are making it just that much harder to meet constitutional requirements," he added.

"I urge voters in all parts of the county, whether they are in dire need of school improvements or not, to support the bonds. If they do not help needed now, they might be lacking proper county-wide support when they must appeal for bond issues to get future improvements in their own sections."

War Veteran Kills Himself at Macon

MACON, Ga., May 22.—(P)—A man identified by police as J. J. Odum, former candy manufacturer, shot and killed himself at the exit to a hardware store here yesterday morning.

Police said Odum clutched a 38-caliber pistol in his right hand and a note in his left hand. He was shot at close range with the pistol, which he had just purchased. He died instantly.

Police said Odum was a shell-shocked veteran of the World War and had been back from an Augusta hospital only a few days. He had been separated from his wife, police said, but they had returned to live together after his return from Augusta. The note read, according to the police: "Leaving this crooked world. Nerves snapped. J. J. Odum."
